POLITICAL NOTES.

—Senator Cameron and Gov. Hartranft are at Bedford Spring.

—J. W. 'Jones, of Harrisburg, has been appointed Superintendent of State Printing, by Gov. Hartranft.

—Georgia militia organizations refuse to carry the national flag. They want another national flog to reconstruct them.

—Over in Huntingdon they have named a Canal Boat "A. L. Guss" and the opposition are determined to sink her.

—The Grand Army of the Republic, of which Col. A. Wilson Norris is Commander, met at Bethlehem, Pa. on the 22nd.

—The Gazette says "A large wolf is said to harbor in Centre Township, Snyder Co. Another Wolf harbors at Centre Hall this county, but he wants to remove to Harrisburg.

—The Lewistown Gazette essays weekly to criticize the "late 4th, of July address of ex Gov. Curtin at Bellefonte." Gov. Curtin made no address here on the 4th it was at the unveiling of the Soldiers Monument at Lancaster, and if the Gazette man can't keep the run of localities better than that he is the last individual whose commentaries on passing events are worth minding.

TIME TO SUBSIDE.

Whatever may be said of the merits or demerits of the Beecher scandal, it is certainly time that it were removed from public sight. We greatly fear that its long-continued ventilation, including the many filthy stories told by persons only remotely associated with the parties, the constant parade of the charges, and all connected with the affair, have served either to disgust, or fill with impure thoughts, the minds of the young. It is proper, the investigation once entered upon, that it should be thorough and exhaustive, but it should have been carried promptly forward to a conclusion. What Moulton knew, he was certainly capable of saying long since. If Beecher can prepare a sermon Sunday morning before his church hour, he could certainly state his case before the committee in a fort night. Of the right or wrong in this affair we do not here speak. But we insist, in the interest of public decency and morality, that the statements of the several parties be gathered in, and the case closed.

The announced purpose to carry it into the courts need occasion no delay. It has nothing to do with the committee's decision. Their duty, from the outset, clearly was, to try the case, and announce their decision promptly. This done, and if appeal were taken to the courts, a swift trial would be quite sure to follow. In this witnesses would testify under oath, and all the facts could be developed. With all such future plans and purposes, none need be concerned. The case was brought before a committee, and the examinations and statements went into the papers. All the prurient rumors that have been partially current, suddenly found a place in public prints. An amount of scandal and pruriency, that is as degrading as it is appalling, is scattered broadcast, exerting a corrupting tendency on the youth of the country, and serving to gratify the enemies of all good. Yet those who dally and delay, are the professed friends of a Chistian minister. We submit that this phase of the case is atrocious. Let it be hurried to a conclusion,—as delay is now quite as injurious to Mr. Beecher as it is to the morals of the entire country. If guilty or innocent, let it be declared.

"SCHOOL IN THE MOUNTAINS" at Bellefonte, Pa. will begin its next session on Wednesday, September 9th. Pupils thoroughly prepared for college, the scientific schools, or a business life. For circular address

30-6t REV. J. P. HUGHES, Principal.

PHIL. SHERIDAN is off on a red hot chase after the unruly savages of the plains. Having been granted the ful power which he asked he is not the man to let grass or any other species of vegetation grow beneath his feet, and we can look for a speedy ending of the troubles on the plains. The instructions issued by the Secretary of War are just the sort that, in the present condition of affairs are required. While all care is taken to preserve the friendship of the peaceable tribes, the measures for subjecting such as are hostile are of the clearest and thorough-going character, the best clause in the order being that which does away with the refuge heretofore to be found in coming immediately back to their reservations after indulging in a scalping frolic.

THE Beecher-Tilton scandal as it was wont to be said about Congress, "still drags its slow length along," and the further the investigation—if it deserves to be dignified by the term—progresses, the more disgusted outside and disinterested parties become. The squabble reminds us of the cowardly boys, yet professedly belligerent and undoubtedly quarrelsome, who stand bandying epithets and "dares" —such as "You strike me!" "No, you strike me first!" or with a chip on the shoulder banter each other to knock it off. There is a culpable cowardice that pervades the whole disgraceful affair, and if there is not guilt somewhere, there is manifested a very great and culpable indifference to what the world may think or believe. Beecher is a "big gun," and an undoubtedly intellectual and prominent, as well as influential, moral, and religious teacher; but then he is not, by virtue of his high position, free from suspicion of wrong. Let him speak out, face his accusers, and explain just what that letter to Tilton does mean.

Tilton is also a shining light—Mr. Beecher's intellectual, if not moral and social equal. Let him tell what he has to say, without equivocation or reserve. His wife, whose virtue and honor are at stake, as well as his own, has dared him to tell all he knows, by leaving his home and seeking sympathy elsewhere. If the innuendoes implicate either she or Beecher in dishonorable action, let him not spare the feelings of either, for silence will brand him as either a coward, a dishonorable man, or a slanderer. It is time the whole scandal were cleared up, and the disgraceful proceedings, in which prominent church dignitaries are involved, brought to a close one way or the other.—Altoona Tribune.

COMPLIMENTARY.—We copy the following flattering notice of the REPUBLICAN from the AMERICAN JOURNALIST, "a monthly review of American Journalism," published by Messrs. Coe, Wetherill & Co., Philadelphia:

The Bellefonte REPUBLICAN, published every Wednesday in Bellefonte, Centre Co, Pa., is the only Republican paper in that large and wealthy county, which sustains three Democratic and two neutral papers.

Like many other papers, representing a minority party, the REPUBLICAN has seen and felt the light and shade of success and adversity. It was started by the firm of Brown & Hutchison, January 6th, 1869, and the "little Bishop Street Organ," as it was called, soon became well known and widely circulated. Col. Brown at that time was a strong political writer, and his partner, A. Boyd Hutchison, Esq., a young man of far more than ordinary abilities, both as a lawyer and a politician. Under their management the REPUPLICAN flourished financially, and became a power politically. On June 8th, 1870, Hutchison retired, and left the management exclusively with Brown. It soon lost prestige and credit, and to prevent a collapse it was consolidated with the Bellefonte NATIONAL, with the firm of R. B. Barger & Co., as proprietors, Col. B. still retaining the position of editor. Injudicious management soon involved the firm in monetary difficulties, and in December, '72, the effects were seized by the Sheriff for debt. The REPUBLICAN was purchased at Sheriff's sale in January, '73, by Messrs. E. T. & R. P. Tuten. Under the control of these gentlemen, the fullest success has been obtained. Edward T. Tuten, the managing editor, has attracted the favorable notice of the press by his plain, common-sense editorials on State politics, and, lately, in his strictures on the financial policy of the administration. His honesty and independence in upholding the right and denouncing the wrong, in both parties, has made the REPUBLICAN a power; while its advocacy of republican principles and of honest men has never abated.

Robert P. Tuten, the publisher, is a natural printer, if such is possible, as the typographical work on the paper and his popularity as a jobber attest.

As a local news-paper it has no rival in the county, and few, if any, in the central part of the State. This department is in charge of D. H. Hastings, the associate editor, who is a good fellow, and exceedingly handy with the pen.

The REPUBLICAN claims the honor of having been the first paper in the State to suggest the name of General Hartranft for the office of Governor.

With a large and growing list of subscribers, a heavy line of job work, and a safe financial footing, we predict a large and prosperous career for the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN.

OUR ASSOCIATED PRESS LETTER.

PHILADELPHIA, August 1, 1874.

JAY COOKE & CO.

This renowned firm of bankrupts are now undergoing an examination before the Register in bankruptcy relative to transfers of property in alleged violation of law. Jay Cooke, the senior partner, says: That in 1861 he considered himself worth $150,000; that on January 1st, 1871, he was worth about $3,157,906.60; that his family expenses were about $50,000 per annum from 1867 to 1871; that his charitable donations amounted to about $280,000. William G. Morehead, the second member of the firm, testifies that he married his present wife, June 12th, 1869; that he then made a settlement of securities upon her and her two daughters of $127,000. On December 25th, 1871, he settled upon her his present residence, costing $150,000; that in 1870 he regarded himself worth $500,000; that on the 25th day of December, 1871, he believed himself to be worth $2,000,000, and in point of law had a right to so deed his property.

H. C. Fahnestock states that he settled upon his wife, house and furniture and $100,000 in U. S. bonds.

James A. Garland, whose interest in the firm was only 7 per cent, states that a part of his share in the profits of 1871 was represented by a certificate for $35,100 which was given to his wife; that in 1872 he paid off a $9,000 mortgage upon a property owned by his wife.

Henry D. Cooke purchased two properties in Washington, amounting to $230,000; the titles to both these properties were vested in his wife; they were subsequently conveyed to Jay Cooke, Trustee, for the use of the firm of Jay Cooke & Co., in order to secure his liabilities to the firm.

This exhibit shows that Jay Cooke realized a profit of about $4,325,000 from 1861 to September 1873. His interest in the firm was 30 per cent which shows an aggregated profit, during that time for this syndicate of the government, of about $14,400,000.

Ever since they were adjudicated bankrupts accountants have been at work under direction of the trustee in endeavoring to arrive at the correct statement of the accounts between Jay Cooke, McCullough & Co. of London, and Jay Cooke & Co. of Philadelphia, this claim is for a very large smount and no accurate statement concerning it has yet been made.

I stated in my letter bearing date June 27 that on the 7th of May a cash dividend of 5 per cent. had been declared by the trustee who then had $500,000 in his hands. From present indications I infer that dividend will not soon be paid. The creditors of undisputed claims protest against the payment of a dividend upon the claim of the London firm of Jay Cooke, McCullough & Co. against Jay Cooke & Co., Philadelphia. That claim is for more than $1,000,000 and has been assigned to Geo. M. Robeson, Secretary of the Navy, for the use of the United States. It is possible the Supreme Court of the Nation may have to adjudicate upon this "preferred" claim before the dividend is paid. The declaration of the dividend is also regarded as illegal by the Register, who is of opinion that under the 43d section of the bankrupt law, a trustee cannot declare a dividend and that to legalize it, Register Mason believes that a majority of creditors interested must make the dividend.

Jay Cooke & Co. have creditors in a majority of the Congressional districts of the U. S., and to those creditors who are daily in expectancy of a remittance of 5 per cent. of their claims I have to observe that until these two legal questions are settled this dividend will not be paid, and the intimation that it will be increased to 7 per cent. is the "soft answer that turneth away wrath" at the delay.

The last examination was held July 21st, and the next appearance before the bankrupt is set down for September 25th, rather more than two months from the July examination.

TOUCHING BOTTOM

The sanguine editor is laboring industriously to put animation into the depressed condition of business; he predicts a busy fall trade and instances the starting up of a few rolling mills that have been "lying speechless dead" for a long time. The "hard pan" of facts scarcely justify the inference of any notable revival of business during the coming fall. An interviewing tour among several solid business men causes me to observe that until the bottom is fairly reached by all classes of the trade the upward turn in the business tide will be delayed.

Many things have reached anti-bellum prices; especially is this the case with sugars, teas, dry goods, wearing apparel and imported goods generally excepting coffees. But all kinds of farm produce, including beef, mutton and pork, with car fares, rents, fuel and labor-wages have to fall cosiderably before they "touch bottom." It seems difficult to reduce wages, so long as rents, fuel and eatables of home production remain so high. For two years our business men have generally uncomplainingly sustained heavy losses in trade and now the conclusion is about reached that expenses must be curtailed by cutting down the wages of employees. To do so must necessarily bring down household expenses which means lower prices for meats, flours, potatoes and rents. The high rates of rent are maintained because of the reckless extravagance in the administration of our city government, which costing over 25 million dollars per annum, requires the levying of 2½ real estate. I can conceive of nothing that will do more to promote the prosperity of our citizens and to give a livelier turn to business, than a rigid economy and honesty in the expenses of our local government.

THE STOLEN CHILD.

Charles Brewster Ross, the kidnapped lad, has not turned up yet, principally for the reason that the reward of $20,000 is so hedged with conditions as to make it practically a nullity. The reward had been offered by the Mayor, and the sum—$20,000 is to be made up by a number of wealthy citizens. It is to be paid only upon the return of the brigands. Let $20,000 be paid for the return of the child to his parents, without reference to conviction of the child stealers, and in 48 hours the boy will be recaptured. Wooster, who was arrested and confined in jail a fortnight on suspicion has been released, the authorities being satisfied that he is in no way connected with the abduction. I have but one theory in regard to this case and the circumstances surrounding it satisfies me that the hidden child will be returned and that no convictions will ever follow, and I regard it as about time that this farce—which may yet end in tragedy— come to a close.

THE CONGRESS SCHEMES.

of next session, now hatching in embryo, were briefly alluded to in our letter of last week. The construction of the four proposed channels of interstate commerce are estimated to cost $155,000,000, which an error fixed at $100,000,000. The contemplated improvement of the Mississippi river so as to give from 3 to 5 feet navigation above the Falls of St. Anthony; from 4½ to 6 feet from that point to St. Louis, and from 8 to 10 feet from St. Louis to New Orleans; estimated cost, $16,000,000.

Second, The Fox and Wisconsin rivers improvement from the Mississippi to Green Bay; the construction of the Hennepin canal from the Mississippi river near Rock Island to Hennepin on the Illinois; the enlargement and improvement of one or more of the three water routes from the lakes to New York city, estimated cost, $19,000,000.

Third, The improvement of the Ohio river from Cairo to Pittsburg, so as to give from 6 to 7 feet of navigation at low water; the improvement of the Kanawha river from its mouth to Great Falls; a connection from the Ohio river or Kanawha river, near Charleston through West Virginia to tide water in Virginia, estimated cost, $55,000,000.

Fourth, The improvement of the Tennessee river from its mouth to Knoxville, communication from the Tennessee river to the Atlantic ocean, estimated cost, $40,000,000.

These routes have been surveyed and estimates made by the War department, and if canals are constructed the cost will be about $155,000,000. If railways be chosen, the estimated cost will be $120,000,000. The paternal ancestors of this gigantic sheme desire it to be distinctly understood that it is to be done exclusively in the cheap transportation, that it is to be in no sense a Credit-Mobilier-Jayne-Sanborn-San-Domingo job.

That transportation charges upon produce are too high is evidenced by the fact of a decrease of 10,584,746 bushels of grain exported in the United Kingdom from 1868 to 1872, as compared with the period from 1860 to 1864, and that Russia's increase during the former period as compared with the latter was 70,590,213. Just so long as railroad Presidents draw $50,000 a year for salary, and all other railroad employees a proportionate amount, the over-burdened grain growing sections of the West will continue their wail of despair; the cry of the laboring classes in the East for cheaper food will be heard, and the decrease in our exports of cereals will be larger.

GONE UP!

The Peoples' Fire Insurance Company of this city always was a shaky sort of a concern, but endeavored to hide its true character until this week when the doors were closed and business suspended. This Company was examined by Insurance Commissioner Foster, April 25th, 1874, who found that the assets of the concern amounted to $286,611.36, and the liabilities, $55,826.12. The assets as shown to Mr. Foster were first Mortgage bonds and accrued interest, $101,482.50; cash in bank, 101,500.00; cash in office, $8,543.39. The balance in due course of collection. With liabilities of $12,911.10, unpaid losses and amount required to re-insure outstanding risks, $36,475.92, reclaimable on perpetual policies, $1,273.48, and all other demands against the company, $2,700. The capital stock of the company was $200,000, and according to Mr. Foster's report, was all paid up. As this company lost only about $5,000 by the recent fire in Chicago, it may well be questioned what steps the Insurance Commissioner proposes to take to avoid a repetition of many similar frauds.

The expenses of the People's for 1873, as reported to Commissioner Foster, were $11,572.00, and the receipts were but $61,164.28. Of this latter sum $26,000 were paid out as commissions and brokerage. The office expenses were about as much more, and the losses paid on risks were less than the commissions paid. This ought to have aroused suspicion in the Commissioner's mind, and probably did, for soon thereafter a personal examination was made, and a certificate of "good character" awarded. The Commissioner was badly cheated by the sharps in this concern. Had Mr. Foster—as he has a right to do—dropped suddenly in upon this company entirely unawares, and demanded to see the stocks, bonds and mortgages held by them to secure insurance risks, he doubtless would have learned that the investments they exhibited to him in April last, were borrowed for the purpose, and that they had been returned to their owners within an hour after he closed his examination and left their office.

Our city has never been so quiet and orderly as now. I scarcely know how to account for it.

His honor the Mayor and Sam. Josephs are at Saratoga. Col. Wm. B. Mann, District Attorney, and Col. A. K. M'Clure are at Minnequa.

STATE ITEMS.

—30,000 dollars have been raised for the Pittsburgh and Allegheny sufferers.

—Mary Haye, of Allentown, has been held in $1000 to appear at court on the charge of being a "common scold."

—Mrs. Mosts, who killed her husband in Fulton county recently, now courts the beams in the McConnelsburg jail.

—A man was found in a freight car at Altoona the other day, who had been locked up two days and two nights.

—Just for winking at a spruce little "widder" a Pottstown married man has had one of his winkers injured. Her brother did it.

—George R. Bailey, of Londonderry, Bedford county, has fallen heir to $30,000, through the death of a brother in New York.

—Graves, who traded his wife for a razor strop and a days' work, to another man in Potter county, has made his last swap. He died last week.

—The following notice is creating some little amusement in Bedford: "All persons having unlicensed dogs are requested to call on the city clerk and get one.

—A Lebanon boy set fire to a hen's nest in a barn to kill some lice. He forgot to take the barn away, and it fell victim to his fertility of expedients.

—Henry Hirt, of Philadelphia, poured coal oil over himself and then set fire to it on Monday evening. He was so badly burned that he is not expected to recover.

—A party of drunken miners, the other evening, boarded the Cincinnati express train at Altoona, threw the colored porter from the car while it was running at full speed. The latter was severely injured and his recovery is doubtful. The rowdies were arrested and bound over.

——John Cole, of Coleville, is still complaining about Chas. Garner, the High-constable, and we suppose he will keep it up until he gets sober. John Cole is rather a decent fellow when he is not under the influence of strong drink; but his sober moments are so few and far between that he is hardly responsible for what appears in the papers over his own signature. Any malicious person could pursuade John Cole, when drunk, to do most anything, while J. C. sober is a different kind of a man. He says, "We had about twenty republican voters here last fall, and I will pledge my word for it, there will not be two here at the next election." John Cole is mistaken there. We know that he can not control a vote in Eggtown, and believe he could be bought himself for a drink of whiskey. Its a sad thing to see an old gray-headed man and father, like John Cole, make a fool of himself by writing silly letters for the papers, about a mean, dirty, little hog-fight. Sober up Cole, and be a man.

——The "Journal" says that D. C. Chandler is satisfied that one honest man is still alive at any rate, and the way in which he was brought to this: On the evening of July 3rd he was driving to his home from Julian Furnance when he lost his pocket book. Before discovering his loss Mr. Charles Whitcomb of this place drove up to his door and inquired if he had lost anything. He thought not, but a little search revealed the fact that his pocket book, containing $150 cash and valuable papers, representing a goodly sum, was missing. Mr. Whitcomb had discovered it lying open in the road, and immediately delivered it to the owner refusing anything like compensation for the trouble he had been to in driving several miles out of his way to return the pocket book.

——Six young Philadelphians thinking it would be delightfully and awfully jolly you know to hunt way up in the mountains of Snow Shoe, made their appearance at the Mountain House a day or two since with guns, ammunition and a dog. Bob Haines, that thoroughbred sportsman, and Max Liveright, the well known merchant, were asked to examine their accoutrements. Everything was of the very best, and pleased the two old hunders; then they were asked to look at their deer-hound—it was a rat-terrier. Then disgust spread itself over Bob's face and he adjourned. When the travelers recovered from their astonishment, they traded their dog for their dinners, and left for home by the next train.

——A miner, whose name we are unable to learn, was killed by a fall of coal at Sterling collieries, on Wednesday. He was lying on his back bearing under the coal when a block weighing about ten tons crushing his limbs and lower part of his body. His comrades hastened to remove the coal and he was conscious until it was removed, when reaction took place and he died immediately.—"Journal."

——Communications from Snow Shoe, Penn Hall and Centre Hall, are unavoidably crowded out. Will appear in next issue.

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN

Poetry.

JOB THE FIRST DISCOVERER OF PETROLEUEM.

The following Poeta was written a number of years ago, during the oil excitement in West Virginia. The author was Gen. Samuel D. Karns, at one time Mayor of Parkesburg, W. V., and uncle of S. D. Karns, of Karns City.

"When I washed my steps with butter, and the Rock poured out rivers of Oil." Job xxiv 6.

When Job, of old, lay sick with boils,
The river flowed with native oils,
E'en honey from the rock did flow;--
Because the Bible tells us so."

The buttered steps round Karn's well
Marks out the place where Job did dwell;
The lamp he used when he was sick
Is burning yet without a wick:—

And always will, while oil is king,
Be called the Rathburn Burning Spring
It once belonged to Arch McCall,
Who sold it for a baby doll.

'Tis said, when Job arose from bed,
He wondered forth with "nary red,"
And journeyed far among the rocks
To seek the remnant of his flocks.

His herds were scattered to the winds
To make atonement for his sins;
And he himself was so far spent
He couldn't earn a quarter's rent.

And in despair he looked around
To find a cavern in the ground
In which to store the oil away,
That on the river's bosom lay.

On Rathbone's land he found a break
That seemed to be a dried up lake.
He caused the flowing oil to stop
And filled the cavern to the top.

He made the ocean's water smile
With laden ships of every isle;
And all the earth for him did toil
In pumping, barreling, shipping oil.

He followed up this greasy trade
Until ten millions he had made,
Then covering up his lake with rocks,
He bought himself ten thousand flocks,

But not long since another Job
Came wandering from the land of Moab:
A long, lank Cassius—lean and pure—
Who was a second Lazarus, sure.

He searched for oil—he scarched for lead,
For he, like Job, had "nary red."
His back was up, his head bowed down
While snuffling odors from the ground.

At length he said, "I'll peradventure
To find the oil's 'eternal centre,'
For here must be Job's long lost wells!
It is Petroleum Oil that smells!"

Now sons of Lazarus gather 'round
And sink your wells deep in the ground;
Bend on your ropes and sharp your bits;
And give this liquid Ophir fits.

Come all lame ducks, the fun's begun,
But don't lay eggs on Nettle Run,
For if you do you'll all get fleeced;
The "Dry-well Club" have got it leased.

Come one, come all, and fortunes make;
Your "bonus" pay and leases take.
One thousand down when you brake soil,
A thousand more when you strike oil,

One-third in barrels, well iron bound,
Will get you twenty poles of ground.
Begin your work one month from date;
In two moons more you'll know your fate.

One hundred feet you first must go
Before you get what's called a "show,"
At fifty more you strike the gas,
Which throws the oil up in a mass.

Then tube your well and pump away
At least five hundred barrels per day.
The trouble is to sell the grease,
To buy the barrels and pay the lease.

And if you can't a market find,
One mouth will find you all behind;
And you will be like Elder Goff—
The more you get the worse you're off.

THE STORM IN ALLEGHENY.

ALLEGHENY, July 27, 1874.

The details from all quarters as they were gradually developed indicated that Allegheny had been the scene of the most appalling disaster, and thousands of people commenced early in the morning to direct their steps toward Spring Hill, at the foot of which the storm had spent its greatest fury. In a short time all the streets and avenues in the immediate vicinity of the scene of the greatest disaster were swarming with people, and a sense of terrible gloom everywhere prevailed which was intensified almost hourly as new developments were made, showing that the calamity was one before which all others paled, that had ever before marked our local annals.

A DOG'S ATTACHMENT

was demonstrated in the next item of interest picked up by the water. In the Madison avenue house there lived a family named Sherie, and the parents when they heard the flood coming attempted to escape through the door to the hillside. They did succeed in getting up, but one of the boys, little Archie, about five years of age, fell back and before assistance could reach him was drowned. His body was not discovered until yesterday morning, when a large Newfoundland dog which had regarded him as a pet, came with the body and laid it at the door. The child was yet warm when thus recovered, but all attempts at resuscitation failed and a piece of white crape floating from the door way yesterday afternoon told the sad story of death within the home.

A MARKET CORNER.

The next point of interest was a short distance below, at the intersection of Madison avenue with East street. The two thoroughfares here meet—East street preserving a direct line toward North avenue and Madison avenue heading a little toward the east side of the hill. Opposite the mouth of the East street there was located Hœvler's large glue factory, a large, three story frame building, having a front of about one hundred and fifty feet. On the side of this building toward the flood, was a small dwelling occupied by Mr. August Rykoff and family, embracing his wife and two children. The family were totally unaware of the destruction which was sweeping down upon them. The building was carried from its foundations and the occupants with it. Mrs. Rykoff, bruised and bleeding, was rescued from the torrent several squares distant, but both of the children, one a little girl aged three years, named Emma and Mary, aged one year, were drowned.

The body of little Emma was found yesterday morning among some debris which had formed a gorge along the plank road, about two hundred yards below the side occupied by the house. This house, however, did not all go at once, as it was in a measure supported by the glue factory.

THE GLUE FACTORY FALLS.

The front was first torn out and this left an opening for the torrent to sweep with a force that could not be resisted, against the glue factory, which for a moment staggered and then fell with a crash. All that remained of it yesterday morning was a pile of rubbish, boards, barrels, sash, hair and glue, from which an odor arose that was anything but agreeable. The building, machinery and all was a total wreck.

A HOUSEHOLD SWEPT AWAY.

Across from the glue factory on the triangular corner formed by the intersection of the two streets, there was a small frame house, where resided Mrs. Cornley, a widow, who had three children—one boy and two girls. A young man named Archy Arnold, and another, a cripple, named John Rogers, were in the house at the time. The entire number, except Neil Cornley, were lost. Young Arnold had gone into the house to rescue some of the inmates, but fell a victim to the destroying element. The bodies of Mrs. Cornley and her two daughters were recovered, as was also that of Archy Arnold. That of the boy Rogers, who was about eighteen years of age, has been recovered. The body of Arnold has been taken to the Sandusky street Baptist church, from which the funeral will take place to-day.

ON EAST STREET.

The waters here separated, in a measure, part flowing for about a square up East street, where the debris blocked up thoroughfare opposite Ludwig's store. The water on this street took away the front of one house, ruthlessly carried off the whole stock of a millinery store, and then backed toward the avenue again. There were no houses torn down, although some of them were very badly damaged by the water.

In the meantime the main volume of water kept on its course, down Madison avenue, and a few hundred feet from the glue factory, struck the two-story frame house of Mr. Watson, which it overturned, but did not carry away. The house was just lifted from the foundation and turned over on a vacant lot adjoining, sideways.

Across the street several stables were swept away and a number of horses killed. The houses, two on either side, were filled, in the lower floors, with mud. The street here was very narrow, and the waters shot through as through it were a flume.

THEY SCOOPED UP A PATHWAY

out of the centre of the street for nearly a square, making a canal several feet deep in the centre of the thoroughfare, and at the end of this cut there was a deep gorge where the sewer had bursted. It was fully twenty feet deep and evidenced the fearful velocity and power of the torrent.

Just below this point there was an open space—between East street and Madison avenue probably four or five hundred feet wide. The flood decorated this space with a large part of the debris, and there were piles of lumber, barrels, parts of wagons, a few dead animals and other rubbish of like character piled picturesquely around. The water here also had a chance at a used for digging purposes by the contractors on the East street sewer, and the flood handled that piece of machinery as a child does a toy—played with it first and then dropped it, a wreck.

Just below this there were several stables, which with their contents were swept off. Mr. Shaffer, who owned one of them, lost several horses and cows, and Herman Treser suffered a similar loss. Across the street from these, a two story frame house owned and occupied by Simon Dreyer, a cooper, was lifted up and set down again sideways. His family were in the house at the time, but strange to say they escaped serious injury. Opposite Dreyer's there was a house, occupied by seven persons, carried off. There wasn't a stick of it left, but it was thought in the neighborhood that some of the inmates had gotten out in time, although they are reported among the missing.

The next obstruction that the flood met was at the corner of Madison avenue and Vista street. Here it piled up a lot of directly across the avenue. Part of a house was there, the last remnants of a butcher shop, a dead horse and a pleasure wagon, with like rubbish mixed in a confused heap. The grade here was somewhat rising, and this helped to stop the current and change it to an oblique direction. It followed the course of the sewer, and shot with the speed of a whirlwind across some private property tearing away a small slaughter house, scooping out a portion of the sewer in its passage, and striking the houses on Concord street, which is the street in the rear of and parallel with O'Hara. The destruction here was as if a fearful tornado had struck the place and carried everything before it. The flood was about fifty feet wide, but it spread before it reached O'Hara street.

It first struck Smeirzler's slaughter house on Concord street, and that passed away. Crossing to the other side it took in Lewis Quirk's cooper shop and scattered the barrels and staves in all directions; the house of J. Metzenberger went with it, as did also Herbert's dairy stable with fourteen cows. Mr. Metzenberger, his wife and child were also lost.

Passing over these lots it struck the rear of the brick houses on O'Hara street and by demolishing three of them cleared a passage way. This locality was the scene of perhaps of the torrent, and the destruction was more complete.

Taking the houses on Concord street and the brick houses on O'Hora street mentioned the flood, had secured ten victims. They were Mr. Fox, wife, child and brother, who were destroyed in the house they owned; Mr. Huffnagle, wife and child; Mr. Jacob Metzenberger, wife and child. Some of these bodies had not been found at last accounts.

ON O'HARA STREET.

Having thus forced its way through to O'Hara street, the flood spent some force on the houses on both sides of the street and carried away nearly every one within its range. On the southern side the waters first took the two story brick house of Alderman Peter Bolster, and it fell with a crash. The hope expressed yesterday that he would find alive the little boy who was among the missing on Sunday night, was not realized. Yesterday the corpse of the child was found among the debris.

After taking the Alderman's house the houses on the east side went down like so many bricks in a row. First were two frame houses owned by Randolph Auritz. Mr. Auritz escaped with his family. The other house was occupied by Mr. Hartman, who also escaped. Next was Lung's grocery store, a frame house, that is a bundle of boards to-day.

The slaughter-house of Christ. Dellenbach fell next, and with it several horses. Wm. Shoemaker's brick house next on the same side of the street, was damaged, but did not fall, and then came the large beer hall and hotel of J. G. Walther, corner of Chestnut and O'Hara streets. It stood the strain, although there was a plentiful supply of mud on the lower floors.

On the north side of the street,—going back to the limit,—there were first the two houses owned by Mr. Fox destroyed. Then a brick house adjoining was left standing. Then the slaughter house adjoining in front of Lipperts house was sent a flying, and his house in the rear was also badly damaged, besides which he lost considerable stock, but no lives. The house adjoining, owned and occupied by Charles Weirs was badly damaged the front and half the gable end being torn away. It stood, however, and all the inmates escaped, except one boy, whose name is unknown and is reported among the missing.

This completed the actual work of destruction on O'Hara street, although all the houses on both sides of the street that remained standing, as far out as Spring Garden avenue, were flooded.

CHANGE OF BASE.

The floods now passed over O'Hara street and came in an oblique direction back of Walther's saloon. I did not move that pile of masonry, but struck Caspar Raud's saloon, a two story frame affair, and sent it whirling around. The carpenter work held together, however, and the house was thus flanked across the avenue completely closing it up. The waters here spread out over all the intervening lots, and outhouses were floating around in the water in all directions.

Turning now to

SPRING GARDEN AVENUE

It is needless to enter into extended details, for the same scenes, in a measure, were enacted as those which marked the track of the torrent on Butcher's Run. The flood up this avenue was not so destructive, and in the generality of instances, beyond the flooding out, the people escaped with much less loss. There were, however, some instances of heavy loss and two victims. The unfortunates were Mr. Wm. Schlotter and his infant child. Schlotter heard the flood coming and thinking it unsafe to stay in the house attempted to escape with the child. The flood, however, had carried away the steps, and it is supposed that in the darkness he could not see this, and stepped off only to be drowned in the waters. The bodies were recovered yesterday.

In addition to this loss of life, Mr. Herchenroether lost $5,000 by damages to his buildings and slaughter house. The Spring Garden brewery was badly damaged. John Bell's glue factory—a large two story frame was swept away, but nobody was hurt. Commissioner Struckrath's tannery was damaged, and Mr. Thomas' slaughter house partially carried off, and a large number of private dwellings injured. Then, besides this, all along the line stables were carried off and animals of all kinds almost innumerable were lost—the number cannot be known until the rubbish is cleared.

MEETING OF THE STREAMS.

The flood of waters, however, came down the avenue, and joining with that from Butchers Run formed a little ocean at the intersection at the angle formed by Center and O'Hara streets, and spread over a territory embraced in the vicinity, to a space of several squares. On Chestnut street, through the blocking up of that thoroughfare by Rand's saloon, it could only go up about a half square, but it almost ruined all the houses on either side; they were generally frame, and yesterday were in a condition that rendered it unsafe to go near them. One man, Peter Shaffer, was drowned here while attempting to escape. The floors of all the houses were broken in, and there were but two among fifteen that could be tenanted. One of them was the one occupied and owned by Alderman Arent.

The next street was Center, and here the flood did damage that as yet cannot be estimated. It reached almost two squares, and swept several houses before it; one of these, a large 3-story frame was turned over on its side. It was occupied by the family of John Gipperich, who were rescued in skiffs—they having taken shelter in the upper stories. Another woman—a Miss McCullough, who was sick, had to be carried from one of those houses, and it is believed the excitement will prove fatal.

Brienringer's slaughter house, on this street, went with the waters. Albright's cooper shop, a large establishment on the west side of the street, met a similar fate.

A two-story frame on the upper limit of the flood fell but the family—Shellman's—were rescued in skiffs by the members of the Duquesne boat club.

In one of these houses, also on Center street, a family named Friend, consisting of three persons, were all drowned, and the bodies had not at last accounts been discovered.

TEN IN ONE HOUSE.

Perhaps the saddest instance of all, however, was that of a woman and nine children who occupied a large frame house in the rear of Center street. The house was overturned and all the inmates were lost. The woman's name was given as Huber, but this is probably not correct as it was impossible amid such a conflict of information to tell which was correct.

PASSING AWAY.

The waters having passed over Center street, followed the sewer line over a meadow and passed through the sewer under a street toward Ohio street. At the north side of Ohio street the sewer bursted and the flood took away a double frame house, occupied by George Kress and Valentine Petereins. None were injured however. It cut a gully here about twenty feet deep. There was no further damage after this as the water passed down into the first lands and poured into the river—nothing being in its way to offer resistance.

Such was the course of the flood, and some of the sights and scenes along the line made apparent to the observer. Yesterday morning the people, as has been said, flocked to the scene, and among them were willing workers who commenced to search among the debris for the bodies.

THE BODIES,

as soon as they were recovered, were immediately put into wagons and taken to the places designated in the city, viz: Fairman & Voght's, Sandusky street, Messrs. Herman & Ley's on Ohio street; and Voght & Co.'s, on North street. After arriving with the remains at the above named places they were washed and placed in a row side by side, to await recognition. Friends and strangers crowded around to get a sight at the remains of the dead, but were prevented from obtaining entrance by a determined doorkeeper. Many bodies are in such a shape as to be difficult to recognize, being badly bruised, while others are fast turning, decomposition having set in. Thousands of people crowded around these places during the day, but none were admitted except those who were searching for friends.

SAD STREET SCENES.

The scenes throughout the course of the flood were saddening to the extreme. Numerous houses containing the remains of those drowned were draped in mourning, and the piles of debris were being searched for others missing. Hundreds of houses had been flooded to the first and second stories, leaving the floors covered with mud to the depth of several inches, which the occupants—men, women and children—were busily engaged in shoveling out and making ready for occupancy. Beds, bedding and other furniture alike shared the mud and water. Undertakers carrying coffins were with difficulty edging their way through the streets crowded with anxious people, curious sight-seers and the wreck of houses. Drowned horses, cows and hogs were met at various points, and scenes of wretchedness were visible at almost every step which utterly beggers description. Many of those who lost their houses and furniture and all earthly goods expressed themselves as gratified that matters were not so bad with them as with some of their neighbors, who in addition to their house and household goods mourned the loss of some loved one. The sights along the entire route of the flood were of such a nature that we hope we may never have occasion to witness the like again.

THE DARKNESS.

The darkness that prevailed at the time of the storm is described as impenetrable, carrying the utmost consternation among the entire population, a great many relying only upon the light caused by the flashes of the lightning to effect the escape of themselves and families to hillsides and other places of safety.

NARROW ESCAPE OF AN AGED LADY.

The house of Mr. George Scherer, on Spring Garden avenue, was considerably damaged and the family had a very narrow escape. The building is a three-story structure, the first of stone and the two upper frame. It is built into the hill, so that the upper floor is still below the level of the yard. Between the second story and the hill there is an open space about ten feet wide, and from the third floor a porch extends to the yard. A torrent of mud and water rushed over this porch on to the third floor, and also down the open space back of the second floor completely flooding the house from top to bottom, and ruining the furniture almost completely. Mrs. Scherer had a very narrow escape. She attempted to carry some furniture to a small house on the back of the lot, but the water came down the hill with such force as to take her off her feet, and had it not been that she was grasped by the arm by another member of the family, she would now be numbered with the victims. The family then took refuge in the garret until the storm subsided. The front of the first floor is bulged out from the accumulation of water in the interior.

IMPRISONED IN A HAY-MOW.

Mr. John Fisher, a butcher doing business at the corner of High and Grand streets has a slaughter house and stable on Spring Garden avenue. When the water began to rise he proceeded to the stable to save his horse, but was overtaken by the flood and compelled to seek safety in the hay-mow. He then caught hold of the horse's bridle and held the animal's head above water and thus saved it. The horse was completely immersed except its eyes and nose for the space of half an hour when the flood began to subside.

WOODS RUN

was terribly afflicted. The stream, as all of the kind were in the neighborhood, was bank full in a few minutes after the rain commenced. It carried everything before it, and unfortunately many who not having the most remote idea of the devastation in progress were taken unwares. Although the deaths were not so numerous as in other parts of the city they were sufficient in number to make the heart sicken. Our last accounts place the number of corpses found at six and among them one who was about to give birth to a child. The names of the dead are almost impossible to procure, even the deputy coroners being unable to learn them while the inquests were being held. The fact that many of the victims were miners and families and lately connected with the neighborhoods in which they resided, accounts for their names not being known. The fact, however, is more applicable to those who were victims of the South Side than in Wood's Run district. We could get the names authentically of James Forden, wife and little son, two children of John Gorman, recovered, and Gorman, whose body up to a late hour was still among the lost. Later than this we were informed of one more death, but the name was not given.

PUBLIC MEETING IN ALLEGHENY LAST NIGHT.

The citizens' meeting held last night in the Select Council chamber, in Municipal Hall, Allegheny City, was well attended by the solid men of both cities. The lobby was filled and all the seats inside the railing were occupied. That those present were not there merely for the purpose of seeing what was going on, but to give of their means, the contributions below offer sufficient testimony. Mayor Fleming took the chair, and briefly stated the cause for which the meeting was called. He said that not only the city of Allegheny, but Pittsburg, had been visited by a disastrous and devasting flood that had destroyed thousands of dollars worth of property, and what was of far more value numerous precious lives. The citizens would be called upon to contribute for the relief of those who were suffering, and he wanted all who were able, to respond to the fullest extent of their ability, and give not five but hundreds of dollars. In conclusion, he said that committees would be appointed and such other measures taken by the meeting as might be deemed proper for the transaction of the business brought before it. Messrs. J. W. Arrott and W. H. Graham, in connection with the reporters, were then appointed secretaries.

Mr. Myler suggested that it would be well to appoint an extra number of police officers to take charge of the flooded districts, put out ropes and guard it until all the debris is removed. Sixty corpses have been taken out, and he thought as many more would be unearthed to-day.

Mr. Fleming stated that all that could be done in that way had been done. The news of the disaster was to him as sudden as the bursting of the cloud that let loose such an awful flood of water. If he had been wakened upon the night of the disaster he would then have made every effort to have things in better condition and to avert the destruction of life. However all that could possible be done he had made arrangements for. The Eallmaster wagon would be kept running all the time and removing the dead horses and defunct animals. A full datail of police force had been instructed to report this morning and will be assigned to duty where their services may be needed.

Mr. Myler expressed the opinion that three to five hundred more men can be advantageously placed at work removing rubbish and hunting for bodies.

REMOVING THE DEBRIS.

Mr. John S. Slagle agreed with Mr. Myler that the debris should be systematically removed, and the bodies of the killed and drowned be taken out inside of twenty-four hours. The work can be effectually done by employing a sufficient number of men, and he urged it as highly important that the authorities should do so. Plenty of men, he stated, can be obtained who will give two day's work for nothing, particularly when it is given in a cause so noble. Mr. Slagle also emphatically and strenuously urged upon the meeting the great importance of considering the disaster not as a local one at all, but as one from which both cities have suffered sadly and the meeting in its deliberation and adoption of measures should keep that in view and act accordingly. The speaker desired to embrace the citizens of Allegheny, Pittsburg, Temperanceville and the entire county of Allegheny in this relief movement. Mr. Slagle terminated his remarks by offering the following:

Resolved, That a committee of citizens of Allegheny county be appointed to collect funds for the relief of the sufferers by the floods of Sunday night, June 26, 1874, with power to appoint such sub-committees as may be necessary to do the work promptly. That three banks in Allegheny and three in Pittsburgh be appointed as the depositories where any person who wishes can call and leave such sums as they may desire to contribute without waiting to be called on by the Committee.

MONEY COMING IN.

At this juncture a number of checks or sums of money were handed in to the chair, and the donors were rewarded with generous applause. Thoughout the entire meeting the donations kept flowing in.

Mr. Dean moved that an Executive Committee of ten be appointed with power to appoint sub-committees whose duty it shall be to canvass and select financial aid for those in distress and poverty. Colonel T. M. Bayne amended by making the Committee to consist of five and the motion was then adopted.

On motion of Mr. Cohen, John Dean was elected Treasurer. In handing over the checks and cash that had been paid Mayor Fleming said "you may put me down for $250."

Mr. Dean—Well you may mark me down for $200 also. (Applause.)

Mr. J. W. Arrott—Put down $200 in behalf of the Insurance Company I represent. (Renewed cheering.)

DEPOSITORIES APPOINTED.

At the suggestion of Mr. Slagle the following depositories, as provided for in the resolution offered by him, as the places at which to receive contributions were appointed.

Allegheny—Workingmen's Savings Bank on Ohio street; Allegheny Real Estate Bank, First National Bank, on Federal street; Manchester Savings Bank.

Pittsburgh—German National Bank, on Wood street; Union National Bank, on Market street; Anchor Savings Bank, on Fifth Avenue; German American Bank, corner of Sixth Avenue and Wood street; Smithfield Street Savings Bank.

Messrs John A. Myler and W. M. Caney were appointed to canvass the crowd in the Council Chamber, and get such subscriptions as they could. They were very successful. Mr. Slagle suggested that the committee to which would be entrusted the disbursement of the money collected should share their authority with their wives, and accord them the privilege of directing in a measure the expenditure of the funds. He thought the idea a good one, and said that it came from a man whose hand was ever in his pocket, and who immediately upon learning of the disaster of Sunday night, placed in the hands of his wife a sum of money to spend as she might see fit for the good of those who were so suddenly deprived of house and home.

Mr. Megraw said the Street Committee should organize at once and employ a large force of men to remove the rubbish and debris that had collected in such vast quantities in the flooded parts of the city. A detail of twenty men should be put under the charge of a foreman whose duty it should be to direct the labor, and in that way the work could be done far more effectually than it was yesterday. He had visited the submerged districts, and said that with a dozen men he could do more and better work than had been done yesterday in an unsystematic way.

SUSPENSION OF BUSINESS

Mr. Myler said he thought it would be proper to request the citizens to suspend business during the afternoon of the day when the funerals of the victims of the deluge will be taking place. Mr. Herbert thought perhaps it might increase the crowd too much and hinder the work of removing rubbish and finding bodies. Mr. Myler's motion, however, was carried.

On motion of Mr. Myler, a committee of ten consisting of the following named gentlemen, was appointed to take charge of the funerals of those who have no friends, and also of those families where every member of the household met with death, leaving none to look to the interment of the others: Messrs O. O. Philips, W. C Herbert, W C Anhurst, Robert Kennedy, Joshua Myers, John Megraw, Joseph Horne, Adam Bepler, Joseph Lantner and Henry Gerwig.

ON CHARTIERS CREEK.

At Leetsdale bottom, just above Mansfield, a number of houses were swept away. Among the dwellings thus destroyed was that of Joseph Hoerer. All the inmates of this house were rescued except the son of Mr. Hoerer about seven years of age, and a little boy seven years old named George Albeitz, who was visiting at the house. The parents of young Albeitz reside on Fourteenth street South Side. It is feared that these two were both drowned. It is also reported that a colored man living in the same neighborhood was drowned, but no authentic information as to this fact could be gained last night. Considerable exitement prevailed last evening around Mansfield, and it was impossible to gain any reliable information as to the number of persons who were missing from that vicinity.

MORE VICTIMS.

Further up the Chartiers Valley Railroad positive information could be obtained of several fatalities, as well as of serious damage. The water seems to have gathered itself in all its power in McLaughlin's Run, a small stream which empties itself into Chartiers Creek, running through Bridgeville and Sodom. During the heavy rains this run assumed unwonted proportion, and rushing down with its augmented power, played sad havoc with the quiet homesteads scattered along its banks. A gentleman who came to the city last evening from the neighborhood through which the run passes, states that on Sunday night it carried upon its bosom cows, horses, and the debris of barns, with the greatest velocity. Not only did it carry on its augmented current, these objects, but it also undermined dwellings and carried death to several families. In Sodom, the house of a respectable farmer named McLees, was completely destroyed and yesterday noon the bodies of Mr. McLees Mrs. McLees and three children, were taken out of the swollen waters. Rushing past Bridgeville, the stream demolished the residence of Mr. Rees and carried Mrs. Rees and five children to a watery grave. Mr. Rees who is the only survivor of his once happy family doubts the wisdom of the Providence which spared him and took all that he loved on earth from him. Five other houses along McLaughlin's Run were completely destroyed and though the inmates were saved from drowning, their entire household furniture, farm implements and live stock were destroyed by the rushing waters.

THE CHARTIERS RAILROAD.

The line of the Chartiers Valley Railroad seems to have been entirely at the mercy of the flood. The bridges at Gamble's, McCowan's and Bridgeville stations were destroyed, and the tracks between Woodville and Bridgeville washed away. Above Walker's Mills it is stated that nearly a mile of the track was destroyed, and the flood carried the rails into Chartiers creek. It is thought the trains on the Chartiers Valley Railroad cannot possible run regularly for two months, so serious is the damage consequent upon the storm.

The bridges on the old Washington pike are also said to have been washed away, so that all chances of reaching Little Washington must be abandoned for a time.

The Pan Handle railroad bridge over Campbell's run was washed away, and also another bridge called "No. 6," about a mile further west. The track two miles east of Mansfield has taken a slide of thirty feet to one side, the right hand track being some distance past where the left hand one was originally.

THE BODY OF AN INFANT FOUND AT WELLSVILLE, OHIO.

"WELLSVILLE, O., July 27.—This evening about six o'clock the body of a male infant, about two or three years of age, was caught among the drift in the river. It had on a red flannel shirt and barred night gown. It evidently has not been in the water many hours. An inquest is being held, and the body will be kept as long as possible, hoping the parents may be found. (Signed "G. W. L.")

AT MANSFIELD.

The storm seems to have taken its course up to Chartiers Creek with unabated fury. The rain fell with the force of a water-spout and carried death and disaster along its course. At Mansfield the frame dwelling of Mrs. Thorne, situated in "Whisky Run," was carried away. Mr. Thorne, when he found the water rushing against his house, attempted to save his wife, but while endeavoring to take her out of the residence the water entered the premises and carried off Mrs. Thorne, and she was drowned. Her body had not been recovered at last accounts.

The smaller runs which empty into Chartiers creek were all filled by the increasing torrent, and the consequence was that many of the streets of Mansfield were covered with water ten feet deep. Sidewalks, fences, stables and other buildings were carried away, and the inhabitants were struck with alarm, fearing that the entire town would be destroyed. This calamity was fortunately averted. One dwelling house besides that of Mr. Thorne was carried off, and not a trace is left of six stables. Out of one of them belonging to Dunbar & Co., Mr. Dunbar succeeded in rescuing his horses, but when he went back after the harness the building was gone. The six stables were all on Campbell's Run.

ALONG THE MONONGAHELA.

From the towns lying along the Monongahela, vague reports have been received of fatal results from the flood, but as these cannot be traced to any reliable source, we give them for what they are worth. It is stated that the storm visited West Elizabeth with great fury and several houses were destroyed by the rushing waters. It is said that seven persons were drowned in this neighborhood, but no one seems to be able to give the names of the persons who were drowned. The rumor reached the Coroner's office, but up to a late hour last night no notification had been left with him to hold any inquests. This might have arisen from the fact that no bodies had as yet been recovered.

As far as known the storm did extend far up the Monongahela River. No disasters are reported from McKeesport, nor from the little towns and villages lying between this city and the place named.

Iron in the Blood

PERUVIAN AN IRON TONIC SYRUP

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COSMOLINE

COSMOLINE is the concentrated extract of the healing properties of Petroleum, which are known. It is the most bland and soothing remedy ever used; beside possessing more healing power than any substance or compound ever prepared. It is for almost all the daily casualties which occur in household, the workshop, or on the farm, as well as for many of the diseases which afflict humanity.

FOR BURNS AND SCALDS

It is invaluable, cooling and soothing the injured parts at once, and producing a perfect cure in a very short time, without leaving any scars. For this purpose alone, it is

A BLESSING TO THE WORLD,

FOR FROSTED LIMBS, COSMOLINE is fully as efficacious as for burns and scalds, restoring a healthy action to the injured parts very quickly. It is also the best possible remedy for Chilblains and Chapped Hands.

FOR RHEUMATISM especially Inflammatory, most forms of NEURALGIA, swelling of Limbs or Glands, COSMOLINE affords in the shortest possible time the HAPPIEST RELIEF.

ON CUTS AND BRUISES, the action of COSMOLINE is almost magical. If promptly applied, it prevents soreness, and the wounds heal very rapidly.

FOR PILES, it has proved to be an unequalled remedy, and many a sufferer has blessed the day of its introduction.

FOR SKIN DISEASES we can recommend it with the greatest confidence, especially for Salt Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, etc., and Teething humours.

We might go on enumerating the many other conditions for which it is unequalled, but will only add that wherever there is inflammation from any cause, COSMOLINE brings a rapid and happy relief, and will be the dependence under all circumstances. COSMOLINE is Prescribed by the best physicians, both allopathic and homeopathic. It is but nature's own production, brought into an agreeable and pleasant condition, and is as safe to use anywhere as fresh cream.

HOUSEHOLD SURGEON'S

No other Bitters in the universe can equal them. I lack space for detailing the availability of these Bitters, but will briefly state its general effects upon the human system, as follows:

It absolutely Purifies the Blood. It speedily corrects all morbid changes in the Blood. It equalizes the circulation of the Blood. It regulates the supply and quality of the blood. It prepares the Blood to furnish a proper support to all the vital properties. It enriches the constituents of the Blood upon which the vital energy of the system is dependent. It infuses the proper degree of animal heat in the system. It purges from the system the morbid humors which retard its natural functions. It imparts vitality and elasticity to every organ of the body. It corrects all derangements, however trivial, which are the first origin of Disease. It promotes the operation of the digestive organs. It improves the appetite and removes all disagreeable feeling after eating. It perfects digestion, rendering it natural and easy. It acts as a mild and efficacious stomachic. It elevates the standard of all the vital forces. It strengthens the nervous fibres and diffuses a calm throughout the nervous system. It destroys all morbid conditions of the mind. It disperses dullness and languor. It banishes those clogs upon pleasure which produce gloom. It drives away those distressing symptoms which rob us of happiness. It revives the physical energies by infusing new life and power into the system. It fortifies the system against the dangers of malaria, fluctuations of the temperature changes in the climate, &c. In short, it prepares the system for the radical change to be wrought in its condition, and restores it to perfect health and natural vigor.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURELY DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

EUREKA

VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

For the REPUBLICAN.

MR. EDITOR : — I desire through the columns of your valuable and widely circulated paper to let others know that Bellefonte has been traveling, and this time to see Hughesville, Lycoming Co., Penna.

This town of a thousand inhabitants is beautifully situated in the valley of Canusarago, and was settled in 1755, and is the present terminus of Muncy Creek Railroad, which connects with the Reading road at Hall's station, 10 miles below Williamsport. Through the enterprise of the people along its line, whose pockets yielded manfully to the demand, this road is to be pushed forward, and is a direct route to the coal fields of Schuylkill, Lehigh and Luzerne counties, and is under the superintendency of H. R. Mehrling, Esq., who is credited with being, and I think rightly, an energetic, skillful, economical manager. Fully equipped for every emergency, he is what you may style an "Ethan Allen" man, and will certainly put it through. With Mr. A. H. Hill, the gentlemanly and intelligent conductor of the train following him up even to the end, there is no way of escape. By the way, this same Mr. Hill is likely to take charge of the office of Prothonotary of Lycoming Co., fter the next November election—so says the "voice of the people, as heard in the land." It will certainly be so if some good Republican Hill don't rise up in his way and prove an insurmountable obstruction. If it must be a democrat, let it be A. H. ———.

Hughesville though so old is fully roused up by the whistle of the "Iron Horse," thirty new structures having been erected last year and twenty-two are now being put up. Mr. L. G. Huling has just finished a large Bedstead Factory and Planing Mill, and James Laird & Co., are rebuilding another in place of one burnt down last week. These mills have close by the finest hemlock and hard-wood field in Pennsylvania. The large veins of fossil, and immense beds of shot ore invite the manufacturer of iron to a paying investment of his funds. This valley is a garden spot not surpassed by any part of Penns valley in cultivation richness and beauty. And its population, judging from the representative men whom I met, and the work of their hands, are intelligent, industrious and enterprising.

Dewitt Bodine, Esq., is one of them, largely interested in the lumber trade—alive to all the interests of their locality, having an eye to their political interests as well. He is Senatorial Delegate to represent the State Convention, and is certainly capable of well representing his party. Dr. Geo. Hill of Kirkpatrick school fame, is another. Along with the duties of his extensive practice of medicine, he interests himself in agriculture, and is the Prest. of the Muncy Valley Farmer's Club. Dr. M. Steck, who had a warm feeling for the Indians, by virtue of appointment by President James Buchanan, is now Master of a Grange and prominent candidate for Representative in next Legislature.

Rev. Charles Steck, is a fine elocutionist, and popular lecturer. I would like to hear his lecture on Horace G., which is said to be A No. 1.

These with many others have felt and responded to the necessity of the Printing Press—and the Enterprise, edited and published by R. A. Kinsloe, the fruits of their "push," is now heralding the truth pertaining to the varied interests of that part of the country, extending to Picture Rock or Yankee town, among the "Trouts," and reaching into Sullivan county.

And last but by no means least in importance in that community, is the well conducted Sabbath School, presided over by Jno. W. Baker, Esq., Supt., and the Rev. M. L. Heisler, Pastor—a young and able minister. I hope to be among them soon again.

Homeward bound, we met on the train Morris Ellis, Esq., on his way to the annual meeting of Trustees, of State College, one of the fast friends of that institution. He is one of the first farmers of C ——o Valley. R.

LEWISBURG CENTRE AND SPRUCE CREEK RAILROAD.—Before us is a copy of the report of the Directors of the Lewisburg, Centre and Tyroue Railroad for the year ending the thirty first of December last. Says the Tyrone Herald, on account of the financial panic the Directors are sorry to report that the work has not been progressing as rapidly since the last annual meeting in June, 1873, as was expected. Yet a portion of the work that was then under contract has been completed, and work done on the balance to considerable extent. The part of the line between Pennsylvania Furnace and the western terminus, at Tyrone, a distance of eighteen 150-1000 miles is finished, ready for ties and rails, and cost $279,352.84, which is $4,747.16 less than the engineer's estimate. Ballast, and cross-ties worth $11,453.35, are already on the ground between Tyrone and Pennsylvania Furnace. The total estimated cost, including ballast, sidings and water stations, of finishing this part of the line is $230,000.00, making a total cost of $520,806.19 in the erection of the road from Tyrone to Penna. Furnace. The Directors are anxious that this end of the road should be completed as soon as possible for the reason that without ballast the road bed, and embankments especially, will become injured for want of this protection. On that part of the line between Mifflinburg and Beaver Dam Tunnel considerable work has been done. The graduation, masonary and bridging of sections 12 to 20, inclusive, a distance of eight 1-100 miles are finished, and all ballasted except about one and a half miles. The track is laid on these sections as far as Laurel Run, a distance of seven 784-1000 miles west of Mifflinburg, and cars began running thereon March 30, 1874. These eight sections cost, exclusive of the right of way, $124,470.81. The report contains a statement of much work having been done all along the line up to May 1st, 1874, on which a considerable amount of money has been paid. At the close of the report the tunnel at Beaver Dam 260 feet long, was within forty feet of being through, and the one at Paddy's Mountain 320 feet in length, was only commenced, the contractors refusing to proceed with the work unless they were allowed a stronger force and larger expenditure of money than the directors had deemed expedient. It is important that these tunnels be completed as early as possible which would give an outlet to some seven miles of road in Penn's Valley which are nearly ready for superstructure. That portion of the line between Linden Hall and Penna. Furnace, some sixteen miles, owing to financial embarrassments, has not been put under contract. This is an important link, and would complete the letting of the whole of the main line of the road. A gross estimate of the cost of this portion of the road, made in 1871, amounted to $348,800.00. Propositions have been recieved from individuals living in that section in regard to the graduation, masonry and bridging and for the right of way. The Directors hope that some arrangement will be made to insure the speedy completion of this portion of the road, as well as the balance of the entire line. The whole length of the road, when finished from the Philadelphia and Erie Rail road Junction to the Pennsylvania Rail road, at Tyrone will be a little over eighty seven miles, the total cost of which will be about $2,206,602.39. More than eighteen thousand five hundred dollars have been paid for the right of way. When the proposed branch to Bellefonte and extension to Danville are constructed, the Company will own one hundred and thirteen miles of rail road. A telegraph wire has been constructed from Lewisburg Junction to Laurelton, a distance of nineteen miles. The subscriptions to the capital stock of the road amount to $346,700.00. Of the $2,000,000.00 seven per cent. bonds, $1,500.00 have been sold to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and $45,000.00 were paid over to the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad Company, as part of the amount that Company had advanced in the construction of the line between the Junction and Lewisburg, leaving $455,000.00 of these bonds undisposed of. The balance due P. & E. R. R. was paid in stock at par. For an exhibit of the financial condition of the company the Directors point to the following statement of the Treasurer:

SHAMEFUL ASSAULT ON AN EDITOR.—On last Monday afternoon, one of those heart rending trials which the fraternity are so often called upon the endure befell Col. W. W. Brown, editor of Brown's Republican, lately published in this place.

The assault or assaults, as we shall show, were entirely unprovoked and can be characterized only as the most improper conduct of those who had once been valued and valuable friends of the assaulted.

Some weeks ago the key was turned on the door of Brown's Republican office and afterwards carried by Sheriff Shaffer. Time wore on, and the office was exposed to public sale. Wm. Furey, Esq., a well known democratic politician, purchased the establishment for one hundred and ten dollars. Then the key was given to said Furey. Editor Brown on Monday last resolved to open his office and the campaign by resuming the publication of his paper. Being unable to enter the office, for lack of a key, he innocently procured a little hatchet with which he visited the door. A few minutes labor would have triumphed over the loss of a key, but Mr. Furey unfortunately came upon the scene and inquired about the damage done to the door. "I did it with my little hatched" was the brave reply; but Mr. F. said that was no way to open the door, and demanded that he should desist. The scene that followed was a very natural sight. At the entrance to his own office, he was insultingly told that he dare not play with his hatchet. Native impulse prompted him to repel the intruder, and, raising the hatched in a menacing manner, he advanced upon the assailant, but his better nature prevailed and he allowed his antagonist to pitch the weapon of truth into the street; this was not all, Mr. Furey still refused him entrance. It was Monday afternoon and Brown of course felt anxious to have his paper out on time. Not a line of type had been set, and no time could be lost. Furey must get out of the way. Brown's cool, dispassionate reasoning affected him not. Soon the heavy cane, by way of illuminating his thoughts, with which the editor had been making a few innocent jestures, was taken from his hand and a blow was dealt him over the eye, and he fell to the ground—a victim of misplaced confidence.

Now ensued considerable excitement and noise. Editor Brown recovered and started for the office of his late guardian, General W. H. Blair. He wanted the General to go his security for one hundred and ten dollars, so that Mr. Furey would let him have the use of his own office and the liberty of the press would again be restored. This the General refused to do. Hot words ensued; angry expostulations, threats, recriminations followed. Boon companions and bosom friends were now at daggers (or rafher knife's) points. The editor was driven to the wall; something desperate must be done! His mind appeared to become inflamed as one who had been drinking. In his frenzy he reached into his pocket and drew forth a knife with a long blade. He threatened; General Blair bethought himself of the police; he moved toward the door; the crisis was approaching; the conflict impended; Brown followed him, his knife uplifted and glancing in the sunlight. When would the fatal stroke fall? The General was all unconscious of his danger. His back was, toward the editor who was going for him. Brown always made it a rule of his life to go for his friends. C. M. Bower, Esq., rushed to the rescue and at the very moment that the General's coat might have been injured Bower stayed the editor's arm and forced him down a flight of steps and unto a hard pavement. In the fall, his arm was broken, so he immediately remarked, but a subsequent examination proved only a dislocation. His friends gathered him up, distinguished medical aid was summoned, his wounds were dressed and the editor was taken to his residence on Howard Street. The news spread rapidly and when it reached Cheap Side P. Gray Meek of the Watchman and the fighting editor of this paper, immediately armed themselves and started in search of the cowards who had so brutally assailed so valuable a member of the fraternity. Fortunately they were unable to find any of them or the unfortunate editor would have been revenged.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

—We have the July number of "The Technologist." We have not seen this journal for two or three months until this number came to hand. As a rule it is not our custom to notice magazines that are not sent regularly. If we miss occasionally a number they become perfectly valueless to us. By the present number of this magazine we see that it is very much improved it is beautifully illustrated and indeed we may say is one of the best magazines of its kind. Price $1,50 per year. Published at 176 Broadway, New York.

DIED

In Girard, Kansas, on Saturday, June 27, Henry P. Strauss, in the 41st year of his age.

Mr. Strauss was born in Turbotville, Northumberland county, Pa., on the 27th of April, 1834. He graduated from the Pennsylvania Medical College, in Philadelphia, in 1856, and immediately began the practice of his profession in Hublersburg, Centre county, Pa. He entered the army, as regimental surgeon of the 150th Pa. Volunteers, on the 19th of September, 1862, where he served for three years. At the close of the war he resumed the practice of medicine in Jersey Shore, Lycoming county, Pa. In March, 1872, he was stricken with paralysis, and soon after lost his sight. He came to Girard in May, 1872, but his health continued to grow worse, and in three months he was taken to his bed, where he was confined until the time of his death. For eighteen months he lay entirely helpless, blind and speechless, being only able to move his head and left arm. Though at times suffering intense pain, he retained his appetite and his consciousness until the last. Death at last brought him a happy release from his pain. He was buried by the Masonic fraternity, of which order he was a member, the funeral sermon being preached by Rev. Mr. Schaefer, in the Presbyterian Church.—Girard Press.

DEDICATED TO
MISS CLARA A. HAMLER, who died in Port Matilda, July 14, 1874.

Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest.—Bible.

Yes, Clara is dead and gone to her home,
She has left this world of strife,
And has embraced the precious promise above,
Which is declared to be eternal life.

Weep not, mother, sisters, brothers,
The spell has been broken and the load cast asunder,
And the powers of earth, with satan as monitor,
Can in no wise destroy this peaceful slumber.

Those epithets of spleen made conspicuous
To the eyes of the living ones left,
Are but the admonition of warning
To evil doers of Satan's fawning.

Christ came to save that which was lost,
And through Him she has found rest.
The javelins of envy cannot on earth reach her,
Nor can his imps on earth torment her.

Let those blush with shame, if shame they have,
Who undertake to traduce the dead in her grave,
And wound the feelings of relatives and friends,
To gratify Satan's spirit of revenge.

The spirit of Clara
Is recorded in heaven against you;
And when the last trump shall sound,
To call the dead from the grave,
Then shall your defamation of scandal
Cause you to tremble and quake with fear,
To see the turbulent waters of your wrath
Quenched with God's robe of righteousness.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

MANY who are suffering from the effects of the warm weather and are debilitated, are advised by physicians to take moderate amounts of whiskey, two or three times during the day. In a little while those who adopt this advise frequently increase the number of "drinks," and in time become confirmed inebriates. A beverage which will not create thirst for intoxicating liquors, and which is intended especially for the benefit of debilitated persons, whether at home or abroad is Dr. Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic. Containing the juices of many medical herbs, this preparation does not create on appetite for the intoxicating cup. The nourishing and the life-supporting properties of many valuable natural productions contained in it and well known to medical men have a most strengthening influence. A single bottle of the Tonic will demonstrate its valuable qualities. For debility arising from sickness, over exertion or from any cause whatever, a wine glassful of Sea Weed Tonic taken after meals will strengthen the stomach and create an appetite for wholesome food. To all who are about leaving their homes, we desire to say that the excellent effects of Dr. Schenck's seasonable remedies, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills, are particularly evident when taken by those who are injuriously affected by a change of water and diet. No person should leave home without taking a supply of these safeguards along. For sale by all Druggists. 29-5t

THE WAY "to minister to a mind diseased," is to take Peruvian Syrup, a protected solution of the protoxide of iron, which gives strength and vigor to the whole system, restores the digestive organs to perfect health, thereby restored to its natural vigor.

A want has been felt and expressed by physicians for a safe and reliable purgative. Such a want is now supplied in Parsons' Purgative Pills.

Henry K. Bond, of Jefferson, Maine, was cured of spitting blood, soreness and weakness of the stomach, by the use of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment internally.

Fourth of July is coming, and with it a train of accidents from premature explosion of guns, pistols, cannons and fire-works, therefore provide yourselves with a bottle of COSMOLINE, so as to be ready for the emergency. By its use the powder will be discharged from the skin, and the wounds will heal rapidly without inflammation or leaving any ugly scars.

SIN IS OFTEN THE RESULT of physical ill health and feeble stomachs. During one-third of our time the process of digestion continues. To be dyspeptic is to be miserable; dyspepsia is the foundation of fevers and all the diseases of the blood, liver, skin and kidneys. Dyspepsia yields to the virtues of the vegetable ingredients in that great purifyer of the blood and restorer of health, DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS. 28-4t

E. F. KUNKEL'S BITTER WINE OF IRON.

E. F. Kunkel's celebrated Bitter Wine of Iron will effectually cure liver complaint, jaundice, dyspepsia, chronic or nervous debility, chronic diarrhœa, disease of the kidneys, and all diseases arising from a disordered liver, stomach or intestines, such as constipation, flatulence, inward pills, fulness of blood to the head, acidity of the stomach, nausea, heartburn, disgust of food, fullness of weight in the stomach, sore eructations, sinking or fluttering at the pit of the stomach, swimming of the head, hurried or difficult breathing, fluttering of the heart, choking or suffocating sensation when in a lying posture, dimness of vision, dots or webs before the sight, dull pain in the head, deficiency of perspiration, yellowness of the skin and eyes, pain in the side, back, head, chest, limbs, etc., sudden flushes of heat, burning in the flesh, constant imaginings of evil, and great depressions of spirits. Price $1 per bottle. Beware of counterfeits. Do not let your druggist palm off some other preparation of iron he may say is as good, but ask for Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron. Take no other. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron is not sold in bulk—only in $1 bottles. E. F. Kunkel, Proprietor, No. 259 North Ninth St., Philad'a.

Sold by all druggists and dealers everywhere.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the Hon. Charles A. Mayer, President of the court of common Pleas in the 25th Judicial District, consisting of the counties of Centre, Clinton, and Clearfield, and the Honorable W. W. Love and the Honorable Henry Dopp, Associate Judges, in Centre county, having issued their precept, bearing date the 11th day of July, A. D. 1874, to me directed for holding a court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery and Quarter Sessions of the Peace in Bellefonte, for the county of Centre, and to commence on the 4th Monday of Aug. next, being the 24th day of Aug., 1874 and to continue two weeks.

Notice is hereby given to the Coroner, Justices of the Peace, Aldermen and Constables of said county of Centre, that they be then and there in their proper persons, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, with their records, inquisitions, examinations, and their own remembrances, to do those things which to their office appertains to be done, and those who are bound in recognizances to prosecute against the prisoners that are or shall be in the jail of Centre county, be then and there to prosecute against them as shall be just.

Given under my hand, at Bellefonte, the 11th day of July in the year of our Lord, 1874, and in the ninety-eighth year of the Independence of the United States.

HAVE YOU TRIED

JURUBEBA?

ARE YOU

Weak, Nervous or Debilitated!

Are you so Languid that any exertion requires more of an effort than you feel capable of making!

Then try JURUBEBA, the wonderful tonic and invigorator, which acts so beneficially on the secretive organs as to impart vigor to all the vital forces.

It is no alcoholic appetizer, which stimulates for a short time, only to let the sufferer fall to a lower depth of misery, but it is a vegetable tonic acting directly on the liver and spleen.

It regulates the Bowels, quiets the nerves, and gives such a healthy tone to the whole system as to soon make the invalid feel like a new person.

Its operation is not violent, but is characterized by great gentleness; the patient experiences no sudden change, no marked results, but gradually his troubles

"Fold their tents, like the Arabs,
And silently steal away."

This is no new and untried discovery, but has been long used with wonderful remedial results, and is pronounced by the highest medical authorities, "the most powerful tonic and alternative known."

Ask your druggist for it.

Manhood; How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical cure (without medicine) of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, IMPOTENCY, also, CONSUMPTION, EPILEPSY and FITS, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance.

☞Price in sealed envelope, only six cents.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, post-paid, on receipt of six cents or two post stamps.

Agricultural.

☞ NOTE.—We earnestly desire that this department of our paper shall be made as useful as possible to our Agricultural friends, and therefore extend a cordial invitation to all parties interested, to favor us with contributions. Individuals who have made useful experiments and yet do not feel competent to write them out in form for publication, if they will favor us with the results we will take pleasure in putting them in proper shape.

I WONDER WHO THEY'RE FOR.

My ma's been working very hard
And also very sly
And keeps her sewing out of sight
Whenever I come nigh.
I asked her once what made her stop
Her work, when I come in,
She said she only stopped to get
A thread, needle or pin.

The bureau drawer right next to mine
Is locked up both night and day,
And when ma wants to open it,
She sends me out to play.
I stole a peep one afternoon,
Although it was not right,
But, oh! the little things I saw
Were such a pretty sight!

The cutest, nicest little clothes,
Just big enough for a doll—
But then I know they're not for her—
She needs them not at all.
I know they're not for ma, nor pa,
Nor me, nor brother "Hor.,"
For we can't wear such little clothes—
I wonder who they'ye for?

Raising New Potatoes.

Of course everybody knows that new varieties of potatoes are raised from seed saved from the little green balls which follow the flowers. These seeds produce plants, which are rarely like their parents in every respect, and sometimes they prove very superior in some respects to them

Of late years new varieties have been produced by grafting the tubers. An eye with some of the tuber is cut out of one kind, and inserted so as to fit very tightly into another kind. All the eyes in the last kind are taken out, so as to keep any from growing except the inserted eye. It is said that the substance of the potato then mixes with the inserted bud, and blends with it some of the characters, thus forming a sort of grafting bud, as the progeny takes on part of the nature of both. We have not tried this plan, nor have we seen any which have been raised this way; but it seem sthat the evidence that it can dit be done is conclusive, and it generally conceded by those who ought to know that the plan is an entire success.

Butter Making.

We note by the Western papers and other sources of information, that butter making is recieving an increased share of attention over former years. In some places they are indeed talking about the business being overdone. This is almost always the case when any great industry is taken hold of earnestly, and is at roubl ewhich soon rights itself by the weaker brethren falling out of the track. From the same sources we note that it is believed the quality has somewhat degenerated in the main, and this also is a general result of over production. Many have an idea, when the market is poor, that it does not pay to do things well. The sharp-witted take advantage of this. It is their golden opportunity. Most people who make money by farming or gardening do it by always having a first-rate article. The more poor stuff in market the better theirs sells. Whatever is in general and steady demand will always have an open market for the good article. We to nodexpect butter making of the right sort will ever be overdone.

Gapes in Chickens.

The fatal disease caused by the presence of the gape worm appears to be unusually prevalent. I have had it in my own runs, where it has attaeked some Seabright bantams; but I have found no difficulty in curing it by the means of carbolic acid. So potent are the fumes of this powerful remedy, and so destructive are they to parasite life, that their inhalation for even a few moments seems perfectly effectual in destroying the life of the worm. It is not even necessary to employ any special apparatus; a few drops of carbolic acid may be placed in a spoon and held over the flame of a candle until the vapor is seen to rise, when the head of a young chicken or pheasant (held in the other hand) may be placed in the vapor which the animal is forced to inhale. Care must be taken not to carry on the process until the fowls as well as the worms are killed. I find after exposure to the fumes for a few seconds the bird may be regarded as cured, and may be seen running about quite well on the following day; if not, the treatment should be repeated. The medicinal carbolic acid is preferable to the tarry liquid used for disinfecting sewers and drains.

Consumption of Hay.

The hay consumed by different animals does not vary greatly from three pounds daily for each hundred pounds weight of the animal. The following table is the result of various experiments by different persons, and will be useful for farmers who wish to determine by calculation beforehand, how their hay will hold out for the winter; 500 feet of Timothy hay, in full bay, being about one ton:

Working Horses	3.08 lbs.
Working Oxen	2.40 "
Milk Cows, (Boussingault's)	2.25 "
Milk Cows, (Lincoln's)	2.40 "
Young Growing Cattle	3.08 "
Steers	2.42 "
Sheep	3.00 "

To Dry Pumpkins.—Peel and cut as for cooking; then slice them very thin, spread on tin or other driers, and expose to a moderate heat in the stove oven. Thus dried the pumpkin will retain its natural flavor. To prepare for cooking soak in water for a few hours.

What a Convict did with Cucumbers.

A prisoner in the Mississippi penitentiary, too weak to work, and who had the run of the yard, one day asked the warden if he could be allowed to cultivate a small corner of the enclosure. "What do you want to raise?" "Cucumbers, sir." "Why, you can't raise them here, the other prisoners would steal them." "No sir," said the man firmly, "They will not steal one of them." "Well, go ahead," said the warden, "and if any of your cucumbers are stolen don't come to me with your complaints." "You will never hear from me on that score, sir." The cucumbers were planted, watered, trained and cultivated, and an immense crop was the result. As fast however, as the fruit ripened, it disappeared, and the warden became convinced that the owner sold it for liquor, produce, or some other contraband article. He directed the man to be watched, and finally he was detected in the act of carrying his cucumbers to the hospital and giving them to the poor fellows who, in their sickness, craved them. Not one had been stolen.

Arrangement of Skirts.

The skirts of dresses are still tied back by strings placed inside the breadths at the sides, so that the fronts are quite tight, leaving the backs long and flowing. Chambery gauze, striped and plain, looks well over silk. A white Chambery gauze body and tunic is very pretty looped up over a colored or white silk skirt, either flounced or plain. The tunics are made very long in front, and much shorter at the back, the folds being drawn up towards the hips.

Plain demi-trained skirts with chatelaine basques are authorized, and made in rich materials.

Plain dresses are also made in English barege, in thin goat's hair grenadine for house wear, in pale pink and blue batiste, in muslin, in embroidered linen, and linen lawn. All these fabrics are cool, and particularly lovely during the hot weather of July and August. The skirts are made with two or three gathered or plaited flounces; the waists plain, and bound with a belt; the sleeves close, with a plaiting or plaited ruffle at the wrist, forming a cuff; the same standing at the neck, or a ruffle of Valenciennes lace. With such a dress a sash is worn always, attached to a belt, and laid in a flat loop, upon the side with two long ends.

"Under-clothing" increases in costliness from year to year; the puzzle now appears, not how little but rather how much to spend, for fertile imaginations are at work to invent methods of getting rid of money. Ladies who are only considered moderate spenders now never dream of wearing anything but silk stockings for day as well as evening toilet. These stockings are very fine, and always match the dress with which they are worn; or what is more fashionable still, the foot is one color, the upper part terminating in vandykes. For neglige wear, striped silk stockings are considered in good taste.

Muslin underskirts are elaborately embroidered and trimmed with imitation Valenciennes lace; two flounces are arranged one above the other, so as to make a charming foullis of lace. Ladies' drawers, which during the winter were worn of either pink flannel or cashmere, are made this summer of pink or pale blue foulard, trimmed with Valenciennes lace; but these are not so suitable as white batiste. Satin stays are now worn in full dress, and chemises are elaborately trimmed with embroidery and lace, and are fastened at the top with either pink or blue ribbon.

This is the extreme of elegance, but the majority of ladies, even wealthy ones, still prefer fine under-clothing that will wash, and that does not need constantly renewing. Outer clothing can hardly be obtained to match under-wear of silk, satin, and lace.—From Demorest's Monthly.

It is by no means necessary to indulge in extravagance in order to be well and tastefully dressed. There is a return to styles which, in many respects, afford simple toilets still in accordance with fashionable requirements, and which indeed, are apt to be considered more distinguished from their very simplicity.

The latest styles in sleeveless jackets are of striped velvet and lace, black or yelowish white; the latter beaded with "white" jet, and alternated with bands of pale blue or pink velvet. The former all black and bordered with black beaded laces.

Organizing a Grange.—The Fat Contributor tells an amusing story about organizing a Grange. A woman was asked:

'What have you done entitling you to be enrolled among the Patrons of Husbandry?'

'Raised 'leven daughters,' was the proud reply. 'All got husbands, and if I ain't a patron of husbandry, I should like to know who is?' She was at once received with cheers.

A carpenter said he had worked around a farm a good deal—built fences round it. He was a joiner, and was allowed to join.

A lawyer claimed admission because he held the plow, but when told by a farmer he 'held it on attachment,' the lawyer subsided.

A retired printer wanted to get in because he had toiled for years with the hoe, but on its transpiring that it was a Hoe press he was barred out.

The village dressmaker claimed to be the champion mower because her customers admitted that she had mode ahead of anybody. She was admitted, but the chair decided they could stand no mower of that sort. She was elected Flora, and is ready to Flora man who denies her right to the honor.

A music teacher advised farmers who were desirous of prognosticating the weather to study the music of Strauss, as straws show which way the wind blows.

A tailor wanted to join on the strength of 'sewing,' and an artist because he had drawn saw logs—drawn them with a crayon.

A father of a large family claimed distinction on account of the years he had devoted to 'cradling,' and a preacher because of the effective manner in which he had handled the ax of the apostles.

A Fellow who has been shaved in China, says the barber first strapped the razor on his leg, and then did the shaving without any lather. The customer remonstrated, but was told that the lather was entirely useless, and had a tendency to make the hair stiff and so forth, and was, therefore, never used by persons who had any knowledge of the face and its appendages. After the beard had been taken off—and it was done in a very short time—the barber took a long, sharp, needle-headed spoon and began to explore the customer's ear. Then the barber suddenly twisted his subject's neck to one side in such a manner that it cracked as if the vertebræ had been dislocated. 'Hold on!' shouted the party, alarmed for the safety of his neck. 'All right,' replied the tonsor, 'me no hurt you;' and he continued to jerk and twist the head until it was as limber as an old lady's dishrag. He then fell to beating the back, breast, arms and sides with his fists, then he pummelled the muscles till they fairly glowed with the beating they received. He then dashed a bucket of cold water over his man, dried his skin with towels, and declared that his work was done. Price two cents.

—Democratic papers thus far exhibit an extraordinary reluctance to grapple with the Indiana platform of their party. Why is this thus?

—A politician named Very is mentioned as a Democratic candidate for Congress from Massachusetts. He will stand a Very poor show in the race, however —The Cincinnati Enquirer and the New York World are both Democratic "organs," but their lyres are not attuned to the same key.

—This from the New York World. "When the hypocrisy is exposed there is an end of argument." True. Where is the seat of the latest Democratic hypocrisy? In Maine, or Indiana?

EAGLEVILLE HOTEL.
EAGLEVILLE, CENTRE CO., PA
SAMUEL H. KUNES, Proprietor.

Having purchased the old Daniel Kunes stand, I have entirely refitted and overhauled the house, and put it in first class order, and have made it one of the best hotels in Centre County. Large and commodious stables are in connection with the house, and teams will be faithfully and carefully attended to. A good board walk has been constructed from the depot to the Eagleville Hotel, and, it being away from the depot a convenient distance, it is the most desirable and pleasant hotel in Eagleville for the travelling public.

Our House.

THE SITTING-ROOM.

Recalling those sunny days, the fragrant air, the freshness and cleanness of the shaded rooms, in which work never seemed to have been done, or need doing, I wonder if there are any such paradises now, any homes where the trail of the serpent has not been seen, any sitting-rooms where roses and honeysuckle perfume the air, and the foot of time falls so softly as it did at the Red Farm? Of Quaker parentage was its mistress, and her soft gray dress, white cap, white kerchief, and white apron, were the same the year round, except on Sunday, when she wore gray silk, The only innovation upon Quaker customs in which she indulged was a pale blue bow at her throat, wonderfully becoming to her fair hair, and delicate complexion, which had preserved its youthfulness, though she was then nearly forty years old—an age which impressed me with a feeling of veneration then, but seems much less awe-inspiring now.

How much the world owes to the Quakers—to Quaker women particularly (I do not know so much about Quaker men)—it would be hard indeed to compute. Their silence, their gentleness, their spirit of self-sacrifice, their pure simplicity of dress, their honesty, their truthfulness, all exert, and have exerted, an influence for good which will be felt as long as the human race continues to exist.

A great deal is said and done in glorification of the activities of modern life, and it is no wonder that women become infected with prevailing ideas, and wish to join the throng of outside workers, or, failing in that, see with their own eyes what is being done. But there is a greater necessity than ever for quiet, restraining influences, for a foundation of honor and respect for what is good and honest and pure, which can only be laid in youth at home, in the family, and through the perpetual ministrations of the old-fashioned family "sitting-room."

Nathan Rothschild of London.

The high priest of Exchange was not happy even in the midst of his overflowing coffers. Naturally enough, he had few friends and numberless enemies. In his later years he suffered from constant dread of assassination. He was always receiving threatening letters, declaring that his life depended on his sending certain sums of money to certain addresses. He scented murder in every breeze, suspected poison in every cup. In sleep he had night mare visions of crouching things; in waking hours, he started at every unexpected noise.

One morning two strangers were announced as having important business with the banker, and they were shown into his private office. He bowed to them and inquired the nature of their negotiation. They bowed and said nothing, but advanced toward him, thrusting their hands nervously into their pockets. Rothschild's alarm was excited at once. They must be searching for concealed weapons; their bearded faces made it clear to his trightened fancy that they were homicidel ruffians. He retreated in terror behind a large desk, seized a ponderous ledger, hurled it at their heads, and screamed "Murder!" at the top of his voice. A small army of clerks poured into the room, and laid violent hands on the strangers, who proved to be wealthy Polish bankers bringing letters of introduction to the (physicially timid) lion of loans. Embarrassed by his auriferously august presence, what is there in a breathing money bag capable of inspring awe?—they forgot their speech and their common coolness of conduct. They were nearly as much terrified as the renowed Isrealite; and as it was their initial visit to England, they imagined at first that all foreigners were deemed robbers and desperadoes until the contrary was established.

A fellow-Frankforter, dining with him one evening, remarked, "You must be happy, baron, with the power to gratify every wish."

"Happy, indeed!" was the response. "Do you think it happiness to be haunted by a dread of murder—to have your appetite for breakfast sharpened by a threat to stab you to the heart unless you inclose a thousand guineas to some unknown villain?"

On one occasion, when the great financier had been to an evening party, and had gotten into his carriage to go home, a friend, wishing to make an appointment, stepped out to speak to him. The timorous banker mistook his familiar friend for a highwayman, and thrust a pistol out of the carriage window, with his favorite cry of "Murder!" before he could be acquainted with the situation.

As Rothschild grew richer and older, his fears increased. He became almost a mono-maniac on the subject of assassination, and many of his relatives thought him in serious danger of insanity through his constant apprehensions. Most of the menacing messages were unquestionably sent him by his enemies, with whom he was plentyfully supplied. Conscious of his weakness, they revenged themselves upon him by inspiring him with baseless terrors. He was repeatedly told so, but he could not be induced to believed that he did not dwell in an atmosphere of poisons, poniards, and pistols.

CAN anything be more beautiful and touching than the following simple little incident, which is related in connection with the recent dedication exercises of the Soldier's monument at Worcester, Massachusetts? Just before midnight of the same day, a woman was observed approaching the monument, and, after looking cautiously around to see that no one was near, she knelt at the base in silent prayer. She was the only daughter of a soldier who was killed in one of the earlier battles of the war; her mother died of grief soon after, and she, then a girl of ten years, has grown to womanhood, but her great loss has never been forgotten.

"O little mounds that cost so much!"
Do we compass what they teach?"

THE ten day assessment is abolished by the new constitution, and all voters must be registered sixty days before the election, when the registration lists will be returned to the commissioners. As the election is to take place on the 3d day of November, it will be well for every voter to see that he is registered by the 1st day of September.

—The latest illustration of what PAUL styled "the foolishness of preaching," was afforded in Indianapolis the other day, when a minister wasted his time in exhorting a lot of Democratic office-hunters to be "honest, good and true."

—"Now the question for the Ohio Democracy is, 'Shall we go with the Maine Democrats or the Indian a chaps" —Cincinnati Gazette.

ELAINE
AS AN ILLUMINATOR.
WHY IT IS THE SAFEST.
ELAINE will not explode while burning in a lamp, nor in any other way, as it does not contain any of the explosive compounds so frequently met with in the ordinary oil for illuminating. A lamp, filled with ELAINE, if upset or accidently broken, will not explode or burn. There is no position in which you can put a lamp filled with ELAINE, for common use, in which it will explode. As no other illuminator has such advantages of safety, ELAINE IS CERTAINLY THE SAFEST FAMILY ILLUMINATING OIL KNOWN.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE.

Commencement Exercises.—Meeting of the Delegates.—Trial of Mowers and Reapers.

On Wednesday last, in company with a number of gentlemen from this place, and delegates from different sections of the state, we visited the State College of Pennsylvania, and spent the afternoon in looking and listening around and among the annual closing businesses of the institution. Feeling sorry that we were not present during the entire length of the commencement era, we are only able to give a brief account of what transpired on Wednesday afternoon and allow our readers to judge for themselves, of the interesting nature of the entire commencement week.

We spent an hour very pleasantly before dinner, in strolling through the great, broard, handsomely ornamented campus, with its neatly trimmed hedges, rockeries, walks, fountain and shade trees; thence to the flower-gardens, where we found plenty of visitors along the numberless walks, admiring the great profusion and varieties of flowers, shrubbery, and the like. Then we made a tour through the pig pens, the cattle yards, the hennery, and other live stock buildings. These were all in most excellent condition and was so remarked by the delegates and other visitors. We were looking through the well-filled barns where the reaper men were busy preparing their machines for the afternoon trial, when the college bell announced dinner. At one o'clock Prof. Downey, with two companies of uniformed students with muskets, appeared on the campus for drill. To one who staid with the women and children during the late war this drilling was an interesting performance, and a number of old soldiers present said their evolutions were faultless.

At 1.30 the annual meeting of the trustees of the College and the delegates from the different agricultural societies took place in the College chapel. Mr. Turner, of Chester county, and Col. Frank Jordan, Ex-Sec'y of the Commonwealth, members of the board, having been appointed a committee by the trustees to act as judges of the election, called the meeting to order. The portion of the charter referring to the manner of holding elections for members of the board was then read by Col. Jordan, after which the list of delegates was read, the following gentlemen responding to their names:

Berks, William Yocum; Blair, Archibald McAllister; Bucks, Jeremiah B. Smith; Centre, Samuel Gilliland, John A. Woodward, John H. Orvis: Cambria, Cyrus Elder; Clinton, J. B. G. Kinsloe; Chester, T. J. Edge, Isaac Speakman, E. B. Ashbridge; Columbia, J. P. Conner, J. H. Ikler, Sylvester Pursel; Indiana, Capt. W. C. Gordon, Major Irwin McFarland, Dr. Thos. St. Clair; Juniata, John Mootzer; Lycoming, B. Morris Ellis; Montgomery, Chas. Hunt, J. R. Hunsicker, A. S. Hallman; York, Dr. John Ahl, Prof. Heiges; delegates from the State society, D. H. Branson, Chester; D. H. Neiman, Northumberland; W. H. Holstein, Montgomery; George Rhey, Westmoreland; Daniel Kaine, Fayette.

An organization was then effected by electing Hon. John H. Orvis, the farmer Judge, of Bellefonte, Chairman, and A. S. Hallman, of Montgomery co., Secretary. The term of membership of A. O. Heister, of Dauphin county, Jas. Kelley, of Allegheny county, and Wm. B. Roberst, of Montgomery county, having expired an election was held to fill the vacancies. It resulted in the election of Messrs. W. T. Hilldrith, of Dauphin co., James Kelley, of Allegheny co., and W. H. Holstein, of Montgomery county.

Dr. Calder then remarked that he would gladly answer any questions in regard to the condition of the institution, courses of study, plans or its general management. Mr. Neiman, of Easton, then stated that through a misapprehension of railroad connection he was prevented from being here as early as he desired. He being a representative of the State society, and personally interested in the welfare of the College, which for many years it had been his pleasure to defend and uphold, would be pleased to hear from other gentlemen who had had a better opportunity to examine into its workings. The meeting was then addressed by Mr. Hunsicker, of Norristown. He stated that the first time he had been to the College, some four or five years ago, he and his colleagues were united in their dissatisfaction at the condition of the school in some respects, but he doubted not they erred in expecting to find a young institution without faults. There is not an institution in existence that is not criticised in some respect. When he visited the College last year he noticed a great improvement, and now he finds improvement on every hand. He supposed it was impossible to conduct it to suit every man, but from what he could see and hear at present he had NO FAULT to find with its management. He was of the opinion that the farm connected with the College was too large, but that in moral instruction, mathematics and the sciences the school was unsurpassed. The farming was not carried out as it ought to be, because the institution had not the means to buy the fertilizers, &c., necessary to keep the land in condition. This year the crops are pretty good and doubtless would have been better if the season had been more favorable. He believed it would be better to have less ground and be able to cultivate it better. While he was not finding fault but was pleased with the farming, he had great faith in the institution and would send a son of his to the State College in preference to any other in the United States. He favored schooling the boys at home, and said it did not speak well for our State to send them away from it to get their educations. We should patronize our home schools, which are fully as good as Yale, Princeton or Harvard. The institution could only hope to reach perfection by experimenting. It has been and is still on the road of improvement.

Dr. Sinclair of Indiana said:—I am from the West and have come down East for light. I wish to ascertain the boundaries of the obligations of the trustees of this institution. I have not a word to say except of approval, nor do I want to enter into any discussion. I think the management of the institution good. At my home in Indiana the institution has a farm, and I have been hoping the trustees would ask a report of it before this. I want them to feel that there is an interest in the State College at Indiana. On that farm there is no evidence of agricultural science. I have the honor to be chairman of the County Agricultural Society. At our fairs our farmers sustain themselves well and manifest much interest in them, but there is scarcely a week passes but that I am asked, "Have you any interest in the experimental farm?" It is a reproach to the institution and is hissed at. You have a trustee there, a worthy gentleman in moral character, but he gives us no assistance. The farm is in debt, is poorly managed and not a third rate farm. There are good farms in the neighborhood, at least we esteem them good. Our farmers are getting rich near your farm, while your manager is getting more and more in debt, the farm not sustaining itself. The land is elevated with a run passing through it, and is naturally of good soil. The flat land is not yet underdrained; the top of the ground is light, dry and shallow, underneath is a hardpan, and in dry weather every thing burns out and in wet weather drowns out. It is hoped it will soon receive the visitation and attention of the trustees. It could be made a lovely spot, productive and self-sustaining, and, instead of a reproach, a help to us.

Mr. Kaine, of Fayette co., then spoke:—I was a member of the board at the time of the purchase of the different farms. I reside in the western part of the State, and in connection with other members of the board made examinations in different places. We wanted a good farm, easy of access and of good location. I was opposed to the project of connecting these farms with the institution from the first, but the legislature passed the law and we had to submit. Offers of farms in different localities were made to the trustees among which was one at Indiana. I visited it once but never went back. I don't think it a third rate or a fifth rate farm. Talk about a good location. You might as well talk about farming the summits of the Allegheny Mountains. The trustees have expended more on it now than on either of the other farms, and to-day it receives $1150 per year from the College, while the central one receives but $600. I am in favor of selling all of them. At Indiana, 100 acres of land were bought at $150 per acre, and it was never worth one-third as much. It was Gen. Harry White's duty, he being our local trustee then, to take charge of it, but he gave it little attention. Since then Mr. Taylor was placed in charge of it, and I am sorry he is not here to vindicate it.

Mr. Sinclair thanked the gentleman for the instruction. He speaks of it costing $150 an acre. The man who sold the land only got $100 an acre, and where the rest of the money went to I don't know. The trustees at first employed a manager from Fayette county, and he run the farm into debt. The money never went to the use of the farm. Enough has already been expended on it to make it a garden spot. The farm is still in debt. That farm possessing the third or fifth rate class of soil will, with good culture and with one-tenth as much help as they now have, in three seasons raise 100 bus. of corn and 25 bus. of wheat per acre. We have good farmers in our vicinity, but the point I wished to make is that the money must have been squandered. The trustees may have done their duty but the money has not gone to the farm.

Mr. Neiman remarked that evidently there had been a ring somewhere and he wished to know of whom, by whom and from whom the farm was purchased.

Mr. Kaine thought it was not a proper place for an investigation, but would tell all he knew about it. The management of the farm during the life of Mr. McAllister (and no man ever devoted himself more faithfully to a work than he did to that which was entrusted to him) was a thankless duty and a thankless job. Mr. McAllister regretted the way it was conducted, but there was no mismanagement on the part of the trustees. It was the people in the vicinity of the farm who neglected and were to blame for not taking an interest in it.

Mr. Sinclair wanted no vindication on the part of Mr. McAllister, and asked Mr. Kaine if he knew how much the farm cost. Mr. Neiman stated he would make further inquiry with regard to the cost of it lest the innocent might suffer.

Mr. Hunsicker thought it did not make any difference what the farm cost. It had been managed as well as it could have been under the circumstances. He would favor disposing of these farms and a portion of the College farm. He thought a small farm should be connected with the College and that the students should develop their muscles on it, and not grow up like hot house plants without sun.

Mr. Turner then produced the minutes of the board showing that the Indiana farm of 121 acres was bought for $16,000. He doubted not that both statements were true and stated within the last year they had an offer to sell a part of it at $300 per acre. There was a sort of tradition handed down from the time of the purchase that part of the purchase money was understood to be expended in improvements before the transfer of the property was made. This being done because the act of Congress, under which the appropriation was made, forbade the expending the money in repairing the farms. The land is now partly within the borough limits and worth all of $130 an acre. He then spoke of the institution now being commended from all sources and in all respects a very excellent place for a young man to receive an education. The charges are very moderate being only $20 for use of building, lights, halls, fuel, etc. Boarding can be had at very reasonable rates either in the college building, at any of the neighboring boarding houses, or students may join in clubs and board themselves. He hoped every one present would send a recruit next fall.

Mr. Branson of Chester Co., said it was his first visit to the college and after having spent two days here he was unable to find anything but what should meet the approbation of every one. A gentleman had said that everything was as well conducted as the circumstances would permit. He would inquire what those circumstances were. In Chester county the average farmer was able to make about three per cent on his investment besides keeping up repairs. In experimental farming it cannot be expected that the farms will be a source of profit. They must be divided into plots, the products of different plots kept separate, and many calculations have to be made, and the results are intended to benefit the public. He believed that the trustees thought the Chester Co. experimental farm was a success. This last year the farm was conducted successfully, after its apporpriation having been reduced $100; and they flatter themselves that it is so. This farm is a good one and the experiments are valuable. The small pittance it annually receives from the state is its vitality, for without that, it could not survive. He then asked if it was not possible for the institution to aid these farms still further out of an income of $30,000.

Gen James A. Beaver, of Bellefonte, followed: The last gentleman takes it for granted that the $30,000 income is to be used to keep up the farms. The farm at the college don't receive a cent of it. It is not only self sustaining but keeps up the campus, building, pays the tolls, taxes, etc. Another gentleman asks why can't you run a school on $30,000? Each year there is expended as salaries for the Professors $15,000 and not a dollar is received from the students for tuition. During the last year the sinking fund was augmented $6,000, and in the last six months $4,000 have been added to it. There are too many things to be run with this income. The different branches of the educational department and also three farms, and we regret we have not more funds to expend on each department. If possible we would lift the farms and institution out of debt in a minute but we have not got the funds. We have had entrenchment wherever it was possible. Last Spring we endeavored to divide the appropriation among the farms as we thought best.

As to the Indiana farm, if I had gone to any man to ask what was wrong, it would have been the President of Agricultural Society, Dr. Sinclair. If anything was wrong with our experimental farm here, the first man I would go to, would be the President of our Agricultural Society, Judge Orvis. Let the farming interests in each community take hold of these farms as the Chester County Society has done. If Indiana county has not sent delegates here it is their own fault, for their own representative here should represent the agricultural interists of their county, and we folks here don't want to interfere with their business. When our delegate from Indiana county goes home he should persuade his Society to take hold of the farm and look after its management.

Dr. Sinclair stated he had only been chairman of the Society one year, that he knew little of how these farms were conducted, but had learned a good deal concerning them. Mr. Kaine explained how the fund originated and how it had been appropriated. Mr. Ellis, of of Lycoming spoke at some length and favored each gentleman pledging himself to send a student next term. Mr. Kaine favored the same. Mr. Orvis, the chairman, then stated that the Centre Co. Agricultural Society was the only Society that maintained a scholarship at the college, also the borough of Bellefonte had done the same and he thought other societies might profit by their example. On motion the meeting was adjourned.

Immediately after the trustees meeting we were invited to attend two exhibitions—a series of chemical experiments, by Professor H. Collier, and a Reaper contest. Our agricultural nature prevailed and we fell in with the throng, going afield. The forenoon rain had softened the soil a good deal; the field of oats was thin and short; the hot afternoon sun made everything smoke; the farmers were present in scores, and so were the politicians—in fact it was just the best combination of circumstances that could be had to give the implements and spectators a severe trial. Some five machines were on the ground, but only three of them were entered, viz: The "Climax," the "Dodge" and the "World Harvester." Messrs. D. H. Branson, of Chester, John Mootzer and John Ross were appointed judges. After a thorough and complete trial, the Climax was awarded the first prize. The "Climax" is a self-raking reaper, manufactured at Corry, Pa., and a more complete description of the same will be found in another column.

While waiting for tea, we happened to meet an old friend who had been taking great interest in all the exercises, having arrived at the college on Monday. From him we learned of the closing examinations, which took place on Monday, and were witnessed by a large proportion of the patrons of the college, and many other visitors. The public examinations continued during Tuesday forenoon, and the trial of Mowers took place at 1:30 P. M. The following is the report of the Judges appointed to decide on the merits of the different machines:

TO THE PRES'T STATE COLLEGE:

The undersigned, a committee appointed to conduct the trial of reapers and mowers, would respectfully present the following report:—The trial of mowers was held upon the afternoon of July 28, upon the College farm. The grass, though not heavy, was in a condition to put a machine to the severest test, there being considerable undergrowth and a slight shower of rain during the contest. Five machines were entered, viz: The Wood, Dodge, Climax, Hubbard and Champion, all of which did their work exceedingly well. The premium was awarded to the "Wood."

On the following afternoon the trial of reapers took place on the same farm. At this trial three machines were entered, viz: The Climax, Dodge and World Harvester. In this contest the "Climax" took the premium, having done its work exceedingly well.

Tuesday evening, "Sophomore night," was one long to be remembered by the class of '76. The chapel in which the exercises were held was decorated in the most pleasing manner; on the wall, in letters made of laurel leaves, was the class motto, "esse quam videri." Every seat in the auditorium was occupied. Mr. R. W. Barrows of Lock Haven, acted as president of the evening. The salutatory oration, "The Pioneer," by C. F. York, Sherman, Mich., was good, giving the impression that the speaker was a careful, thoughtful student. "The Thought of one generation, the Science of the next," by W. F. Schroeder, of Lock Haven, was excellent, and, notwithstanding a slight embarrassment at the outset, was well said. The "Moslems," by E. L. Orvis, of Bellefonte, was well composed, well committed, and delivered in splendid style. Then came the class history, written by W. M. Manley, Richmond, Va., and read by B. F. Keller, Boalsburg, Pa. The Valedictory oration, "The Golden Hour," by A. Edgar Osborne, Media, Pa., was by far the best of the evening in production and delivery. The Sophomores evidently were proud of their entertainment, and well they might be. The music by Miss Nellie Clough, piano, and W. T. Read, flute, was entirely indispensible.

On Wednesday evening the Junior contest for the Kaine prize took place. The prize was awarded to that member of the Junior class who composed and delivered the best English oration. The first speaker was John J. Wallace, Coals Bluff, Pa., his subject being "Man, ideal-real." The oration was well prepared, and the delivery was excellent. He was followed by J. E. Glenn, of Mansfield, Pa., on "The Enforcement of Law,"—preparation and delivery good. Then came William Calder, of Harrisburg, Pa., with "It might have been" for his subject. This oration was probably better prepared than any one of the evening, and had the gentleman a good, clear voice, he no doubt would have carried off the honor. The last speaker was James F. Sloan, of Lock Haven, his subject being "The Law of Costs." Mr. Sloan's was an excellent production, and was well, very well delivered, with a single exception. When almost through, he unfortunately lost the connection, and during the few moments of silence, when the entire audience was trembling with sympathy, and fearful lest he should fail, Mr. Sloan coolly commenced at the beginning of his oration, and repeated it over to himself until he came up to where he had broken off, and then finished it as calmly and excellently as if nothing had happened. All the more credit is due Mr. Sloan for his presence of mind. Had it not been for this accident, many suppose he would have been the successful competitor. The following is the report of the judges:

TO DR. CALDER, Pres't of Pa. State College.

Esteemed Sir:—In a contest in which the orators were all so exceedingly meritorious, the committee has found great difficulty in arriving at a decision by which all shall have justice done them.

From the stand-point of articulation, pronunciation, gesticulation, intonation, logical arrangement of thought, and thorough memorizing, your committee has unanimously awarded the Kaine prize to John J. Wallace.

Signed,
JOHN H. ORVIS.

At the meeting of the trustees on Wednesday morning, Professor J. W. Dean of the University of West Virginia was elected to the chair of Mathematics and Ancient languages, vice Professor Robinson resigned and Prof. J. W. Allen of Millersville State Normal School was elected principal of the Preparatory Department vice Prof. Burgan, resigned.

General James A. Beaver was elected president of the board of trustees, Doctor Calder Secretary, and Prof. John Hamilton, Treasurer.

The commencement exercises were held on Thursday forenoon. A large number of visitors was present and the College chapel was crowded before the exercises began. The College choir sang a hymn which was followed with prayer by General Beaver, chairman of the board of trustees. The salutatory address and oration entitled "Hope through the Cross" was delivered by Thomas W. Burkholder of Harrisburg. Curtis G. Campbell of Johnstown then delivered an excellent oration on "Labor and Capital". The delivery was very good. "Beyond" was the subject of the next oration by Fred'k Crumbaugh of Chicago. He was followed by S. A. Easley of Circleville, Tex., with "Who succeeds?" as his subject. Then came J. A. Ellis of Hughesville on "Mystery." "Perseverance to Labor, Patience to Wait" was discussed by W. Henry Thompson of Houserville. The last oration, "On the Threshold," with valedictory, was delivered by Orrien P. Downing of Brooklyn, N. Y. His production was excellent and probably the most interesting of the day. The parting words to schoolmates, faculty, trustees and classmates were very affecting. The exercises were delightfully interspersed with excellent renderings by the College choir. We would say here that no commencement exercises could have awakened a deeper or more pleasurable interest in the minds of the spectators nor have reflected more credit upon the institution or themselves than the performances of the members of the class of '74. The faculty may well feel proud of them, as they, of their alma mater.

Doctor Calder then conferred the degrees as follows:

Thomas W. Burkholder, A. B.; C. G. Campbell, B. S.; Fred'k Crumbaugh, A. B.; S. A. Easley, B. S.; J. Alder Ellis, A. B.; W. H. Thompson, B. S.; O. P. Downing, B. S. The following prizes were awarded:

Bengal prize, C. F. Reeves, Lock Haven.
McAllister prize, W. J. Kehl, Harrisburg.
Ladies' prize, Anna M. Stackhouse, Hammerton.
The Kaine, John J. Wallace, Coals Bluff.
President's prize, Geo. A. Landis, Milroy.
The Turner, C. L. Forster.
The Orvis, J. M. Stall, of Honotsville, and Chas. M. Calder, State College.
Montgomery prize, Fred. Crumbaugh, Chicago.
Eby prize, John W. Heston, Pleasant Gap.

The benediction was then pronounced and the college year was closed. During the afternoon, the large number of visitors, together with most of the students, left for their homes. The next term commences August 28, and the indications are that the attendance will be larger than ever.

——Mr. J. B. G. Kinsloe, editor of the Clinton Republican, in company with John D. Stratton, Esq., visited Bellefonte on Tuesday last as delegates to the conference held here to elect a senatorial delegate to the state convention. Edward P. McCormick was selected as the delegate.

——The last number of the Freeburg Courier announces the death of its senior editor Mr. D. C. Moyer.

FATAL, SAD AND SICKENING ACCIDENT.—We have seen men with their heads shot off, men with their limbs lacerated from their body, men wounded or killed by balls or shell in almost every imaginable way, but a sight equal to the one witnessed by half the citizens of Tyrone on this (Thursday) morning we never beheld. At the Bald Eagle Tannery of D. P. Bay, Esq., in two large baskets were the remains, shivered to pieces, of Mr. Jacob Bryan, who left his home, a mile above Tyrone, on the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, after six o'clock well and hearty, and was ushered into the presence of his Creator in an instant, the same happening before seven-and-a-half o'clock. Mr. Bryan was a bark grinder at the establishment above named, and having discovered that the ground substance was not going into the proper place as it left the elevator which carries it from the mill, he went into the leach house to right matters, and as he was in the act of returning to the grinding room his clothing, which hung loosely on his body, was caught by the main shaft which, connected by counter shaft, operates the chain drivers. This shaft is stationed some two feet from the joist which bears up the floor on second story of building, the speed of which is about one hundred and fifty revolutions per minute. In an instant the clothing of the unfortunate man was twisted tight to the shaft and the body whirling at fearful speed, head and feet striking the joist in turn as they revolved. One faint cry was heard by the men in adjoining rooms and all was over. In a few seconds some of the employes were on the spot, not to render any relief to the victim of the accident, but to witness a most horrible sight. Over a space of a rod square, in and out of leach tubs, were fragments of the body. Here lay the head and shoulders, there a leg, another place an arm, and still another the heart, beating as if in the body, another the intestines, liver, etc. Mr. Bryan was fifty-five or fifty six years of age, was the father of ten children, all of whom, we understand, with the mother, are living to mourn the sudden and appalling death of husband and father.—Herald.

A WORD OF COUNSEL.—Every careful business man and every farmer who feels it to be his duty to make more money, during the year, than he expends, is and ought to be continually casting about for opportunities to economize. There is no place where the principles of economy may be so successfully applied as in the household, in buying staple goods both for the table and for clothing. If a friend were to tell you how you could save money largely in this way, you would no doubt be grateful. We will tell you.—You will save money by buying whatever you need at the best store in town—Burnside & Thomas'.

Y. M. C. A.—The union meeting at the reading room of the Y. M. C. A. on Sabbath afternoon last was well attended. The movement seeming to meet a want felt by all denominations another meeting was appointed for Sabbath afternoon next, at 4.15 P. M., to continue for three quarters of an hour, in the large hall of the association. Rev. Mr. Lilley, at present supplying the Lutheran church in this place, was appointed to lead the meeting. A general invitation is extended to all to attend the meeting, which will be largely voluntary.

Centaur Liniment

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling they will not subdue, and no lameness which they will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. They have produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts scalds, burns, salt-rheum, earache, &c., &c., upon the huma frame, and of strains spavin, galls. &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. They are counter-irritant, all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are endered harmless, and the wounded are healed without a scar. The recipe is published around each bottle. They sell as no articles ever before sold, and they sell because they do just what they pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling, deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—these liniments are worth your attention. No family should be without them. "White wrapper for family use;" Yellow wrapper for animals. Sold by all Druggists. 50 cents per bottle; large bottles $1 00. J. B. ROSE & Co., 52 Broadway, New York.

CASTORIA is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest. 5-30-1y
